PREFACE

Vatakunathan temple complex, Trichur, is an important cultural edifice of Kerala. It has considerable sculptural wealth in stone, terracotta, wood; an art gallery; and different architectural forms. An attempt has been made here to study the art treasure of the temple, including its administration. In preparing this thesis a number of friends offered their help to me.

First of all, I am deeply indebted to Dr. M.K. Dhavalikar, Reader, Department of Archaeology, Deccan College, Pune, for his able guidance. I offer my sincerest thanks to him for his valuable help and suggestions.

I am grateful to the Director and staff members of the Deccan College, for the cooperation they have extended to me.

I am thankful to Dr. S.G. Mudgal, Principal, D.G. Ruparel College, Bombay, for his encouragement.

I record my thanks to Shri H. Sarkar, the then Superintendent Archaeologist of the Government of India for giving me permission to study the photographs in the office of the Temple Project Survey, Madras.

I am deeply beholden to Sri C. Sundararaghavan who initiated me to the world of fine arts, and Prof. R. Rangaramanuja Ayyangar, who developed my interests in fine arts.

My thanks are due to the authorities of the Library of the University of Bombay, Prince of Wales Museum, and Asiatic Society of Bombay.

I express my gratitude to the Cochin Devaswam Board, for giving me permission to take photographs, and prepare plans.
In this connection, the help rendered by Shri M. Balagopalan, Director, Small Scale Industries, Trichur, and his assistant, Shri Achuthan, is gratefully acknowledged.

I offer my gratitude to Shri A. S. Menon, I.A.S.,(Rtd), and Shri V. R. Parameswaran, Pillai, Rtd. Archaeologist, for helping me decipher the inscriptions of this temple.

Dr. K. V. N. Swamy, Head of the Dept. of English, D.G. Ruparel College, helped me in getting rare Malayalam books and I am grateful to him.

I record my thanks to Shri V. K. Nagpure, who accompanied me to the sites to take photographs. I also record my deep sense of gratitude to Shri M. M. Shirodkar, D.G. Ruparel College, for helping me get the thesis in this form.

Smt. Vijayalakshmi Nayar, gave me all encouragement to complete my research work and I record my gratitude here with great pleasure.

Last but not least, I thank all those who have helped me in one way or the other for the completion of this thesis.

Pune

Dated. •

Vijayaraghavan S. Nayar.