Acknowledgements

It is great pleasure to acknowledge the kind help and suggestions given by the persons mentioned below in preparing the thesis.

Dr. S.R. Venkatramaih, Reader in Clinical Psychology, Department of Home Science, S.V.U. College was my thesis supervisor. To him I remain grateful and indebted, for, he gave me an opportunity to work on the topic of my thesis and further enthused me to develop critical thinking in that area of research. I have tried to imbibe from him the value of precision, skill and measured expression which he always insisted upon and regarded as very important in scientific reporting. It is his suggestion, criticism and advice that improved immeasurably the research reported in all its aspects.

My sincere thanks and appreciation are due to Professor (Miss) P.R. Reddy, Professor and Head of the Department of Home Science, S.V.U. College, for having encouraged me to join as a part time research scholar in the department and for helping me by giving practical suggestions.

I must remember and thank Dr(Mrs) K. Rajeswari Murthy (presently at Amsterdam, New York) the then Principal, S.P.W. College who encouraged me to do research in the University as a part time research scholar. It is my good fortune that all the subsequent principals continued to provide encouragement and facilities throughout my research tenure. Particularly I should mention Miss V.P. Kamala Kanon, who is the Principal of S.P.W. College for providing necessary administrative support and personal encouragement for completing the research programme. Mrs. Maria Teresa, Head of the Department of Home Science, S.P.W. College deserves my thanks for helping me to complete the research work.

I offer my grateful thanks to Mrs.V. Vijayalakshmi, the Statistician, Department of Home Science, S.V.N. College for advising me in the statistical analysis of the data. But for her support it would not have been possible for me to understand and complete the analysis.
The factor analysis of the subscales on PARI was made easy, by Sri P. Subba Reddy, Research Scholar, Department of Computer Science, Indian Institute of Technology, Guindy, Madras. The entire data was processed on the IBM 370 computer with the help of Sri P. Subba Reddy. I specially thank him for his

In successfully completing my research, I needed information and permission for visiting various elementary schools in Tirupati (both municipal schools and privately managed schools). I must thank the Commissioner, Tirupati Municipality and the Correspondents of private management schools for providing all the facilities I required.

I appreciate and offer my thanks to all the small children, whom I approached for collection of data. They responded favourably to my demands and put up with long sessions I had with them. They deserve my heartfelt thanks. It is needless for me to say how important the cooperation from the teachers of the respective schools I visited, was in successfully completing the task of data collection. They not only helped me during my work with children but also in locating the houses of children in my sample. To all of them, I owe my sincere thanks.

In the preparation of the thesis the specifications and recommendations of the style format in the thesis composition made by American Psychological Association Publication Manual (1975) were incorporated.
