ACKNOWLEDGEMENT
In the writing of this thesis I owe a large debt of gratitude to a number of people, who gave me their time which was invaluable for my research.

First and foremost I would like to thank my supervisor Dr. Krishna Sen, Reader and Head of the Department of English, Calcutta University for her kind co-operation during the writing of this thesis. She has provided me with both encouragement and insight, and without her patient guidance this work could not have been completed.

I owe a great deal to Dr. A.P. Trivedi, Professor of the Department of English, Roorkee University, Roorkee, for his suggestions on my work at various times and places.

I am indebted to Dr. Sona Roy, Reader, Department of English, Calcutta University, for her constant encouragement at various stages in the preparation of this work.

I am deeply grateful to my parents and parents-in-law who have always been supportive, and without whose love and blessings my mission might have remained unfulfilled.

I owe an enormous debt of gratitude to my wife who has helped me with my work in ways too numerous to mention. I am also grateful to my loving children SOLMAZ and ALI who patiently awaited the completion of this work.

I thank my generous friends Dr. E. Safa and his family and Dr. M.A. Allaeddini for providing me with encouragement to complete my study. My friend Dr. F. Rahnama has borne with me patiently and I am grateful to him too.
At the end, I gratefully acknowledge the kind cooperation extended to me by the library staff of Calcutta University, National Library (Calcutta), the British Council Library (Calcutta), the American Center (Calcutta), the Delhi University Library and The Roorkee University Library.

Esmaeil Zondi
12th May, 1998
Calcutta, India