ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my Supervisor, Prof. Geetha B. Nambissan who encouraged me to undertake research in a new and challenging area in the discipline of Sociology of Education. I owe her immensely for she has given generously to me in terms of time, knowledge, personal attention and patience. Despite her pressing schedule, she was always available with valuable observations, inputs and directions that were critical for my research. I would like to thank her for being a patient listener to my views and for supporting my endeavour to work in an area I believed in. I am thankful to her for believing in my potential to perform and above all, in me as a student. To be able to treat a student with 'strict compassion' i.e. providing space for intellectual stimulation and brainstorming, without imposing one's views is a challenge for a Supervisor- a challenge she admirably lived upto. She also never forgot to appreciate my efforts (even though the results were, at all times, not to the best of her expectations) for which I am grateful as it encouraged me to work harder. Superlatives seem inadequate when I express my heartfelt thanks to her for being not only an excellent Supervisor but also a very compassionate person.

I would like to thank each one of the Tibetan youth I interviewed, for opening up to me and trusting me enough for sharing their lives with me- a total stranger from a different nationality and culture. I am also thankful to the officials at the Department of Education, Department of Publications, Guidance and Counseling Department, the Library of Tibetan Works and Archives and the Scholarship Department of the Central Tibetan Administration, Dharamsala, Himachal Pradesh for consenting to being interviewed. All were generous with their time and knowledge, for which I am grateful. I would like to particularly thank the Education Officer at The Bureau of the Dalai Lama, New Delhi and Mr. Nawang at the Central Tibetan Administration, Dharamsala for facilitating these interviews. I would like to extend my thanks also to the Education Officers at the Central Tibetan Schools Association, New Delhi for taking out time for being interviewed and also for permitting me to refer to the annual reports of CTSA.

I am thankful to Mr. Tenzin Tsundue for an informal discussion that provided me with enriching insights for my research. I would like to extend my gratitude to Mr.
Lawrence Liang who sent me his research paper on Tibetan refugee children, which was very illuminating. I am also grateful to Mr. Jigme, Director of the Tibetan Youth Hostel, Delhi for allowing me access to the hostel, the permission to interview Tibetan youth residents and to spend time with them at Losar etc. I am thankful to the faculty and office staff of ZHCES for their encouraging presence and support.

I am very thankful for the presence of wonderful friends in my life without whom my work would have been a joyless endeavour. I am particularly grateful to Maya, Medha, Meetu and Reshma, amongst many others who supported my work and me and saw me through a lot of trials and tribulations during this period.

My research would not have been possible without the blessings, selfless love and encouragement of my parents and I feel extremely fortunate for their presence in my life. I am thankful to my brother, Vineet and to my sister, Garima for their encouragement and for standing by me at all times. A special thanks to my one and a half year old nephew, Rig, for being himself and for bringing light and cheer to my life.

Lastly, but not the least, I would like to thank my mentor, Dr Daisaku Ikeda for his guidance I received from the books he has penned, which encouraged me to ‘get up’ every time, I ‘fell down’ and to push on towards my life’s goal with appreciation and joy. His life and his words encouraged me to never give up—no matter what. I am thankful to him, as it is from him that I have learnt the importance of a life of struggle and in the belief that within every struggle and defeat lies potential victory.

It is with utmost sincerity and gratitude that I offer my thanks to all the above.

In gratitude,

MALLICA
