It is a great pleasure on my part to present my Ph.D. thesis work entitled "An evaluation of oil extract of garlic cloves (Allium sativum Linn.) as an antiosteoporotic agent in an ovariectomized rat model". I express my sincere indebtedness to all, who helped me to complete this work successfully.

It is a great honour to express my deep sense of gratitude and respect to my teacher and my supervisor Prof. Chandan Mitra, Head, Department of Physiology, Presidency College Kolkata. I am very much grateful to my respected Sir for spending his invaluable time to teach me with care and for his constant supervision, suggestion, constructive criticism and abundant inspiration throughout the Ph.D. programme.

I would like to express my sincere gratitude and respect to the Co-Investigator of the UGC project, Dr. (Ms) Smita Mitra, Scientist, Drug Development Division, Indian Institute of Chemical Biology for her invaluable scientific advice, kind-co-operation, inspiration and emotional support.

It is a privilege to thank Dr. Nazrul Islam and Dr.(Ms) Srabani Chanda for their co-operation and help.

I wish to tender my heartfelt thanks to my senior fellow-scholars Mr. Sandip Mukherjee, Ms Dolan Das and my friend Mr. Asankur Sekhar Das for their kind co-operation and help throughout these years. They shared all my ups and downs and extended their help whenever I asked for. I also acknowledge deeply the kind of co-operation rendered by my beloved junior fellows Mr. Subhra Chattopadhyay, Ms Anasuya Maiti and Ms Sangita Majumdar.

I must not fail also to acknowledge Ms. Jyoti Partho Chowdhury for her invaluable scientific advice and kind help.

It is also a pleasure to record my thanks to Dr. Anjan Kumar Biswas, Dr Prabir Mukherjee, Dr. Jyotirmoy Chakravorty, Mr Devasish Sen and Mr Alak Kumar Shyaml of Department of Physiology, Presidency College Kolkata for their encouragement and good wishes.

The untiring help and co-operation rendered by Sri Nirban Chandra Pyne during the entire course of this study deserve special mention.

I am very much indebted to my parents, in-laws, pima, didi, brother-in-law and other family members for their continuous encouragement, inspiration and tremendous mental support to complete this work.
Words are inadequate to express my feelings for Dr. Saswata Banerjee, my husband, for his constant encouragement during the period of my work. Without his support and assistance it was impossible for me to complete this work.

Finally, financial assistance from University Grants Commission (UGC) in the form of Major Research Project is gratefully acknowledged.

I acknowledge further Dr. Ratna Mukherjee of University Women’s Association of Calcutta for the kind of encouragement and assistance rendered for completion of this thesis work.

Date: 21.08.2006
Place: Kolkata

Maitrayee Mukherjee
(Maitrayee Mukherjee)