Contents

Abbreviations vii
Acknowledgement x

Chapter 1: Introduction 1
1. Theme and Aims of Research 1
2. Historiography 3
3. Perspectives of Research 13
4. Sources and Interpretative Strategies 16

Chapter 2: Geographical Delineation 28
1. Bengal as a Region 28
2. Sub-regions and their Characteristics 33
3. Interactions with Neighbouring Regions 44

Chapter 3: Organisation of Rural Social Networks and Their Interactions with Political Authorities: c. A. D.400-550 53
1. Procedures and People Involved 54
2. Adhikarana as Node of Social Network 73
3. Participants and their Relations: Dominance, Solidarity and Friction 85
4. Type of Political Authorities and their Interaction with Local Population. 93
5. Glimpses of Other Types of Social Networks 101

Chapter 4: Rise of Sub-regional Kingdoms and New Form of Rural Social Networks: c. A. D.550-800 104
1. Cases in Vaṅga and Rāḍha 104
2. Changes in Local Participation: Emergence of New Form of Rural Social Networks 117
3. Dominant Rural Groups and their Interaction with Political Authority 130
4. Samata: Sub-regional Kingship and its Organisation of Rural Society 134
5. Emergence of Buddhist Monasteries as Large Scale Landholders 152

Chapter 5: Intensification of Social Stratification and Infiltration of Political and Religious Authorities: c. A. D.800-1100 158
1. Social Stratification in Rural Society and Decline of its Power 159
2. Infiltration of Political Authorities and Rise of Samantas 182
3. Buddhist Monasteries and Other Religious Institutions: their Nexus with Political Authorities 197
4. Attempt at Social Reorganisation: Representation of Homogeneous Agrarian Society in the Krṣiparaśara 203
5. Another Attempt: Networking of Professional Groups towards Jāti Formation 208
6. Kaivartta Rebellion as Culmination 223

Chapter 6: Brahmanical Systematisation: c. A. D.1100-1250 228
1. Efforts of Further Infiltration: Land Assessment in Terms of Currency Units 229
2. Establishment of Brahmanical Authority: Royal Adoption of their Norms and Dominance in Rural Society 244
3. Social Stratification and Infiltration of Monetary System 260
4. Puranic Festivals: Efforts towards Social Cohesion by Brahmanical Initiative 268
5. Brahmanical Systematisation of Social Stratification: Jātis in the Brhaddharma purāṇa 276

Chapter 7: Conclusion 291