This thesis owes its completion to my supervisors Prof. Ranabir Chakravarti and Dr. Heeraman Tiwari for their unfailing guidance and motivating words to me. They always gave me concrete suggestion on how to improve my crude formulations. Conversations with my CHS mates Dhiraj, Jasso, Santosh and USP helped to clarify my ideas. During the last months I felt the absence of Muro Da who was busy with the Dutch sources of Indian history. I enjoyed a great deal the company of shaikh Alam, sufi Wasay, padosi Haidar and mulla Imran. All of us share a genuine interest in the Urdu poetry of Dard, Daag, Mir, Galib and Faiz. Wasay used to recite some of the most beautiful verses of Hafiz and I reciprocated with the best pieces from classical Sanskrit literature, particularly the Meghadūta.

The JNU central, DSA and exim–bank libraries were the mainstay, but the source of the Jaina sources was the B.L. Jain Institute of Indology, Delhi. This work was financed by the ICHR and UGC fellowships.

Words fail me and eloquence seems superficial when it comes to expressing gratitude to my wife Rupa, who constantly encouraged me to write a good thesis irrespective of the gham-i-rozgaar, the most discouraging distraction one has to cope with while working for his/her Ph.D. in subjects such as History in this part of the world. Our joy knew no bounds when at the very end of the work we got a baby boy. We decided to christen him Aniruddha which will always remind me how a particular Nietzschean drive or Aristotelian appetite overcomes all obstacles and obtains fulfillment.
