OBJECTIVES AND HYPOTHESES

OBJECTIVES OF THE PRESENT STUDY

- To study the nature and extent of suicidal ideation among undergraduate college students in Kolkata.
- To assess different personality traits and to find out whether there is any relationship between suicidal ideation and dimensions of personality of undergraduate college students.
- To study the level of emotional intelligence of the college students and to find out whether there is any relationship between suicidal ideation and emotional intelligence of undergraduate college students.
- To study the level of depression of the college students and to find out whether there is any relationship between suicidal ideation and level of depression in undergraduate college students.
- To study whether male and female differ in terms of the suicidal ideation with reference to the aforesaid variables in undergraduate college students sample.
- To study whether the aforesaid variables i.e., personality traits, emotional intelligence and level of depression can be considered as predictor variable in development of suicidal ideation in undergraduate college students.
RESEARCH HYPOTHESES

1. Personality dimensions of under graduate college students are related to their suicidal ideation.
2. Emotional intelligence of under graduate college students is related to their suicidal ideation.
3. Level of depression in under graduate college students is related with their suicidal ideation.
4. Male and female under graduate college students differ in their suicidal ideation with reference to different variables.
5. Personality dimensions, emotional intelligence and level of depression are considered as predictor of suicidal ideation in under graduate college students.

***