ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am very thankful to Sudhir for his guidance, support and freedom throughout the PhD. He has been a very good scientific supervisor to me. He has helped me to shape my scientific eye and broadening the conceptual thinking. I appreciate his ability to plan for very long term.

I would like to thank my thesis committee members Dr Cecil Ross and Prof. Jyotsna Dhavan. Given a medical background, Dr. Cecil has always asked me to think in terms of clinical settings. The guidance form Jyotsna has been boosting to complete the important experiments and thinking about the next steps.

I am thankful to Shang Li for his support in CRISPR experiments. He was helpful in supporting my visits to his lab.

I would like to thank people from my lab who maintained a productive environment. I would like to thank Sweta for building up a conceptual thinking, Jeevisha for her constructive scientific criticism and very thorough knowledge of restaurants, Chitra for qPCR and statistical analysis, Aswathy for her very sound interpretation and analytical strength, Calvin for his sharp eyes and writing skills. There were other members with whom I spent good time in the lab. These people are- Maria, Shankar, Ashwat, Leanna, Anuj, Deepali, Sasikala, Sreedevi, Annapurna and Reety. I am very happy that I could work with several enthusiastic interns like Alka, Jayashree, Aditi, Rahul, Yoshika, Suraj, Pankaj, Prajakta, Leeza and Abinaya.

I give my special thanks to Krishnamoorthy, Deepthi, Navya and Raksha for their help in FCAS training and data analysis.

I am thankful to Dr Mohan, Reena, Shilpa and other people in animal facility for their help and training.

My whole PhD had too many interactions with academic and non-academic staff. I am thanking reception, computer section, stores, lab kitchen, library, purchase, administration, canteen and travel desk for their help. A special thanks to AshokRao, Vishalakshi, Ramprasad, Gautam, Shaju, Sathish and Ranjith for their help.

I would like to thank my friends for their help in cooking and spending a lot time out in B'lore restaurants. These guys are- Trayambak, Steffy, Krithika, etc.

None of this would have been possible without the love, encouragement, and constant support from my family. I am thankful to my father Mr. Bhupendra Kumar Arya, mother Mrs. Yashoda Arya, Brother Gunjan Arya, and sister Neelam Arya. I am also thankful to my new family- Mr Dineshan, Mrs Mini and Parvathi which I got during my PhD. I would like to add a list of many thanks to my wife/friend/batchmate/roommate for all her help in scientific and non-scientific discussions, cooking experiments, planning the work and having faith in me. And finally I would like to thank my family Goddess- Maa Durga for having her blessing on me and guiding all the good and bad times.
