Acknowledgment

During the effort of making this thesis, I owe debt of gratitude to those who have provided critical comments, moral encouraging, and helped me in different ways. Even words are not strong or sufficient enough to explain one's thoughts, it is the possible alternative one can use in a genuine effort of conveying gratitude.

Although the debt to the teachers cannot be repaid, I convey my deep sense of gratitude to my supervisor, Professor Maitrayee Chaudhuri, not only for her encouragement and precious guidance on this work but also for her understanding and sensitivity regarding the problems which can be faced by a fledgling researcher. This work could not have been formulated in a profound structure, nor could it reach this stage had I not received her innovative ideas and perceptive suggestions knowing when let to be and when to intervene. I also express my sincere thanks to Professor Dipankar Gupta from whom I initially got generous guidance when I started my research work under him, and Professor Anand Kumar from whom I got generous help for my studies in JNU, and other faculties of CSSS for their help in different occasions.

I am thankful to officers of CSSS and SSS of JNU, staff members of JNU main library, EximBanck library and library of CSSS, Nehru Memorial Library in Teen Murti, and Rathan Tata library of Delhi University and staff members of National Archives of Sri Lanka for their assistance during my period of research. Indeed, I cannot forget Mr. Sathish Kumar of SSS office of JNU for his help and dear association during this work.

I should be thankful to the Indian Center for Cultural Relations and its staff members that facilitated my study in JNU awarding a scholarship under the 'India-Sri Lanka Cultural Exchange program.' Also, I should thank National Center for Advanced Studies in Humanities and Social Sciences (Sri Lanka) for the research grant given for my first fieldwork.

This is a thesis about life and changes of a village and its villagers in Northwestern Sri Lanka where I lived around eight months for collecting empirical data. I am indebted to the people of this village for their hospitality, assistance, as well as being patient with me during my long conversation with them. And, I convey my thanks to the officials of government and non-government organizations with whom I continuously went through during my research work. However, I have changed the name of this village and used pseudonyms for all the persons of whom I talked here. Further, except very few places, I have changed the names of the other places which were subjected to my analysis here. This is because of my moral responsibility as a researcher to protect the privacy of the people of whom I have discussed here.

I greatly appreciate Dr. K. Karunathilake, Lalith Ananda, and Athula Samarakoon not only for their critical comments on different sections of the manuscript but also for their deep-sensation on me, particularly to Lalith Annda for his editing assistance. I convey my heartiest thank to Rev. Galkande Dammananda and Assantha Attanayake for their contribution on my academic life in JNU and for many years of moral encouragement. I was privileged to have sensational inspiration of Dr. Upul Hewavithanagamage and Dr. Shivapalan that made me stronger for this work. I should particularly be thankful to Anura Gunasekera for the help given generously in so many occasions during my fieldwork. And, my heartiest and friendly thank should go to Bhairu Lal Yadav not only for his help to draw the map of the study village but also his brotherhood to me during the life in JNU. Special word of thank should go to Professor Sunnanda Maddumabandara, Dr. H.W. Karunarathne, Ms. Geethani Amarathunge and my other teachers in University of Kelaniya (Sri Lanka), Dr, Rakesh Batabyal and Ms. Mahalaxmi, Professor Y.S. Alone and his wife in JNU for their help and generosity.

While working on this thesis, the dear association of my friends in JNU and Sri Lanka including Rev. Indarathne, Senthil and Abi, Hemanga, Hemantha, Robinson, Sanathanan, Samantha, Sumudu, Sriyani, Indi, Leela and Ajey, Felix, Zanzini, David, Avinandan and Chandi, Niriella, Chanchal, Yamuna Mendis, Chaminda Abeyesingha, Nissantha Sakalasuriya should be reminded. Particularly, I should be thankful to Anura Karunathilake, Gunawardana, Palitha, Ananda and Chandi, Sunil, Adikari, Mahesh, Anu, Rashi and Inoka for their ever loving brotherly sensation on me for many years.
Lastly, but certainly not the least, my gratitude should go to my parents, parents-in-law and other relatives for their sensational care; and to Nimmi for her greatest help and infinite patience on me during this work.
