I would like to thank my supervisor, Prof. D.N. Rao for his guidance, support and cooperation in the process of developing this thesis. He has been extremely patient and accommodative in guiding me through this. He has always taken out time for this work and always encouraged me to work harder.

My sincere thanks to Dr. Saroj K. Adhikari, Assistant Director, Ministry of Women and Child Development, GOI, for providing data which has been used for part of this work. Academic discussions with him have enhanced my understanding of this area.

Thanks are also due to Dr. Prabha Arora, Assistant Director, Ministry of Women and Child Development, GOI. She has provided me with research material throughout this work.

Special thanks are due to Ramasheeh and Manoj at IEG for their help in data analysis. Their inputs at the final stage of my work are very valuable. They always encouraged me and were very supportive. Their suggestions have helped me improve upon my work. I would also like to thank Sanjeev at DSE for making me understand NFHS data better. Thanks also to my friends, Deepika, Rekha and Abhiroop who have helped me with analysis. Thanks to the library staff of IEG, DSE and JNU.

Sincere thanks to Dr. (Mrs.) Rao, wife of Prof. Rao. She has been most welcoming whenever I visited their home. Her words of wisdom, encouragement and cups of tea were morale boosters for me. I would also like to thank Dr. Arif for providing me accommodation when I needed it the most.

Throughout this journey, my family has been very understanding. I would like to thank my husband, Manishi, for being patient and accommodative. He has helped me a lot at various stages of my work. A special thanks for my brother, Alok, who has been very encouraging and always cheered me up. My friends, Pratibha, Navnita, Shumona and Khusro, provided me lots of mental and emotional support all through this work and all through the years I have known them. Thanks to them too.
Last, but not the least, I would like to take this opportunity to thank two very special people, whom I generally take for granted. A word of thanks is due to my parents. They have always been a great source of strength, support and encouragement. Their faith and belief in me has kept me going. A special thanks to my mother, who kept me well-fed, during the most critical finishing stage of my work.

Thanks to all my friends and family.

The usual caveats remain; all errors are mine.
