ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

One is confronted with a great difficulty when words find themselves unable to express what are feels in the depth of the heart.

I find no words to express my deep sense of gratitude and humble thanks to my esteemed and learned teacher Dr. U. Agarwal, M.S., Reader in Department of Obstetrics & Gynaecology, M.L.B. Medical College, Jhansi, whose constant encouragement and able guidance gave me strength and vigour to stand this difficult task of mine and without whose affectionate supervision and sympathetic attitude this work of mine would have remained a thing of the past.

I feel short of words to express my overwhelming sense of gratitude to Professor Rama Mitra, M.S., D.G.O., Head of the Department of Gynaecology & Obstetrics, M.L.B. Medical College, Jhansi for her learned guidance, constructive criticism and meticulous attention without which it would not have been possible for me to complete this work in its present form.

I am deeply indebted to Dr. (Mrs.) Ratna, M.D., Lecturer in Pathology, M.L.B. Medical College, Jhansi for her suggestions and unending patience in explaining to me the intricacies of histopathology and cytopathology in this work.

I owe my gratefulness to Dr. Susheela Kharakwal, M.S., Lecturer in Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Dr. M. Kapoor, M.S., Reader, Dr. Sunita Arora, M.S., Reader Dr. Sanjaya Sharma, M.D., Lecturer, for their constant encouragement and suggestions during the study.

My thanks are due to all my senior and junior colleagues for providing me help at all occasions.

Finally I express my heartiest and most humble feelings for my parents, whose passionate affection, advise and encouragement have always helped me cross all hurdles, and in whose humble feet this work of mine is dedicated.

I am most grateful to my husband Dr. G.S. Anand, not only he have me moral support but his efforts are involved in bringing this work to its present shape.

Last but no the least my thanks are due to Mr. Kanhaiya Lal for devoting so much time in typing the manuscript neatly and faultlessly.
