The idea for doing research on, “Affirmative Action and the Issue of Reservation: A Case Study of Chhattisgarh, In the Context of International Experience” came out of a series of dialogues with my supervisor Prof. Kamal Mitra Chenoy. His enthusiasm, inspiration, and great efforts to explain things clearly and simply helped to make the tough work of writing a doctoral thesis into a pleasurable activity. Throughout my thesis-writing period, he provided me encouragement, scholarly advice, invaluable guidance and a lot of ideas. I will remain forever indebted to him for his generous guidance.

I also express my heartfelt gratefulness to Prof. Anuradha M. Chenoy, Prof. Nivedita Menon, and Dr. Rajan Kumar, Prof. Anupama Saxena, and Prof. M. M. Semwal, who brought me closer to the reality that I had ever thought. I am thankful to Dr. Sheela Pawar and my younger sister Rashmi who helped me a lot during my field visit. I am grateful to my all respondents, who were kind enough to respond to my queries.

My parents, brother and sister are always my source of inspiration and strength. Without their unwavering support and encouragement, the research was not possible. My sister Rashmi has not only encouraged me to continue my study but also helped to complete my field survey and reach the tribal people whose welfare and empowerment is the prime objective of the research. It was really a wonderful experience to interact with these people during to field survey. My special gratitude is devoted to my friend Dinoj Kumar Upadhyay. His constant supports, encouragement, the moments we spent together are memorable. It was a wonderful opportunity for me to make friend like him to cherish throughout my life. I owe a special debt to Dr. Vinod Sen. Throughout my research work, his role as a supporter and advisor has been precious.

I would also like to extend my gratitude to Supriya, Mahendra, Tanu and staff of my center for their help and constructive suggestions during the initial stage of my research.
