Acknowledgement

I would first like to acknowledge my supervisor Prof. Anuradha Chenoy for her academic guidance and encouragement from the very beginning of this research work. I have benefited incalculably from her vast experience and engagement with all dimensions of gender issues. Prof. Chenoy’s insights and orientation have enriched this work at all stages. I am very grateful for her support and for teaching me the complex task of doing academic research.

I have also benefited from innumerable discussions with Prof. Uma Chakravarty. She has worked tirelessly over the last decade to impart theoretical understanding of patriarchy and has shaped my feminist consciousness. In this work especially, she has regularly discussed issues wherever I have had any confusion.

I would like to thank Prof. Ilina Sen for her inputs in shaping my understanding of feminist politics. I have benefited immeasurably from her academic understanding and theoretical discussions about women’s movement.

Prof. Tulsi Ram’s and Dr. Arun Mohanty’s lectures have been very valuable for this research. I would like to thank them for stimulating discussions in the class which enabled me to better contextualize my research questions. Prof. Ajay Patnaik has always helped me whenever I have needed it. I have also benefited from his academic works which have enriched this research.

Dr. Rajan and Dr. Preeti Das have been most encouraging and helpful in clarifying many details during the course of this research. I would like to thank them very much for their cooperation and support.

Mr. Handa’s cooperation and words of advice have made doing research in this department a very pleasant experience. I thank him, Mr. Gurpreet and Mr. Vijay for their support.

I would also like to acknowledge the time and effort put in this work by Dr. Sakthivel Selvaraj who gave me helpful suggestions particularly in the areas of economics and health issues. I would like to thank Dr. Vivek Tiwari and Dr. Srinivasan for their encouragement, help and discussions. Kavita Krishnan has contributed by clearing up complex theoretical and ideological issues in discussions with me.

I must thank my colleagues and students from the Women’s Studies Department, Wardha of Mahatma Gandhi International Hindi University, Wardha. Class discussions and heated debates on many dimensions of feminist theory and its social-political implications have enabled me to organize my ideas and arguments much better.

Special mention must be made of Awadhesh, who has read every word and suggested innumerable improvements from the very beginning. I am also very grateful for his support and constant help in tackling the technical aspects of this research. I have benefited immensely from his comments, friendship and encouragement.

This work would not be possible without the love and unconditional support of my sister Rachna and Sakthivel, who opened their hearts and home for me from the beginning. Discussions with my sister Shilpy on economic issues and her patience with me have benefited me very much.

At many junctures I have benefited from comments of friends who are from outside the area of this research. I would like to thank K.K. Pandey, Kakali, Sunil, Jyotikant, Shehnaz, HariOm, Tulika, Mritunjay, Akhilesh, Astha for their encouragement. The little ones: Tanni, Sarthak, Arpit, Aditi and Gotu for being there.

Pranay started me on this path, kept me on it and bore all the burdens alone. He has given me orientation each time I needed it. Thank you.

My father passed away on 30 January 2007, just before I started this work. He has always been there with me and would be proud because this work could be finished. My mother has steered the entire course even when the days were difficult. There are no words for the gratitude and love I have for her unfailing support and faith in me.

Needless to add, despite the efforts of everyone, the mistakes and gaps that necessarily have remained are very much mine.

Shubhra Nagalia
