CONTENTS

Acknowledgements ..........................................................................i
Preface ..........................................................................................ii-vi
List of Contents .............................................................................vii-x
List of Table & Figures ...................................................................xi
List of Abbreviations .....................................................................xii-xiii

CHAPTER I: INTRODUCTION ...........................................................1

Political System of Thailand ..............................................................2
Executive and Legislature ................................................................4
Administrative Units .......................................................................5
Scope of the study:
History of the Buddhism and “Monarchy” in Thailand ......................5
Buddhism as a factor in Thai Politics: The Sukhothai Period
(1238-1350) ..................................................................................7
Ayutthaya Period (1350-1767) .........................................................10
Buddhism and the Enhancement of Royal Power .............................11
Rattanakosin 1767-1932 (Chakri Dynasty) Period ..........................13
King Mongkut and His Religion Changed ....................................15
Modernization under the reign of King Chulalongkorn
(Rama V 1868-1910) ......................................................................15
Concept of Nation: Reform under King Chulalongkorn .................16
Buddhism and the Bureaucracy .......................................................19
Change in Modern Thai Religion and society ...............................20
King Wachirawudh Rama VI (Ruled 1910-1925) ............................21
Prachathipok (Rama VII 1925-1935) Overthrow of the Absolute
Monarchy and Political Allegiance .................................................27
The Early Constitutional Period: The 1932 Temporary Charter .......29
Buddhism and Monarchy ...............................................................33
Causes of the Coup on 19th September 2006 ..................................37
The Role of Buddhist Sangha in Thai politics .................................42
Research Questions ....................................................................44
Hypotheses .............................................................................45
Objectives of the Study ...............................................................45
Methodology .............................................................................45
Tentative Chapterization ..............................................................46-48

CHAPTER II: NEW BUDDHISMS–BUDDHADASA
DHAMMAKAYA AND SANTI ASHOKE ...........................................49

Historical Perspective of Buddhism in Thailand ............................49
Theoretical perspectives ...............................................................51
Belief system and Practices .........................................................56
Changes in Thai Society and its Religion ....................................59
New Religious Movements – An analysis of Buddhadasa Dhammakaya and Santi Ashoke

Wat Phra Dhammakaya movement

Santi Ashoke Movement in Thai Society

CHAPTER III: BUDDHIST MONASTERY AND THE SANGHA IN THAI SOCIETY
CHAPTER IV: BUDDHISM AND GOVERNMENT DURING DEMOCRATIC MOVEMENT

Sarit Thanarat Era 1958-1963..................................................... 146
History of Social Development.................................................. 149
State Administration and Local Government Structure during the Sarit Period ........................................................................... 150
Sanghas and Modernization in Southern Thailand......................... 154
A Brief History of Muslim Southern Thailand............................... 158
Buddhist Sangha’s role in the Development Processes of North and Northeast Villages: 1960-1963................................. 160
Demonstrations and Struggle for Democracy: Thanom,
Prapas Era 1964-1973............................................................. 162
A review of University Student’s Demonstration for Democracy...... 163
Buddhist Sangha and the Political Modernization: Thanom Era........ 165
Rural Development in Northeastern Thailand......................... 168
Sangha’s development programme in the Central
North of Northeast Thailand..................................................... 169
Historicity of the Meo (Hmong) Tribe in Northern Thailand........... 170
Monks and the Implementation of Developmental Programmes...... 172
The Achievement of Dhammatuta (Buddhist Missionaries).............. 174
Problems and Obstacles............................................................ 175
Sangha in Development Projects................................................. 176
Civilian and Military Rule: 1974-1980........................................ 178
Economic Boom in Thailand: 1986-1990..................................... 184
Social Impacts during the Boom............................................... 187
Phra Prajuk and his Activism during the Boom............................. 188
Coup and the Movement for Democracy during the Boom: 1992...... 190
Impact of Asian Financial Crisis in Thailand: 1997-2001................. 197
Thailand under Chuan Leekpai and IMF..................................... 199
Impact on Human Resource Development.................................. 201
Impact on Health...................................................................... 202
Unemployment and Underemployment Workers Rate..................... 202
Phra Dhamma Visuthimongkol’s Role in Politics during the Crisis..... 206
Buddhist Sanghas’ role in HIV/AIDS Prevention and Health Care in Wat Phra baht Nambhu...................................... 207
Democracy as Authoritarianism Thaksin Era: 2001-2004................ 211
Thaksin Era and the Thai Muslim of Southern Thailand................. 213
Thaksin’s Second Period: 2005 – 2006....................................... 216
Role of the Buddhist Sangha in Political Arena Today.................. 218
Sanghas’ Role and Assessment during modernization and democracy movement................................................................. 220
Buddhism and Thai Socio-Political life...................................... 222-223
CHAPTER V: MONARCHY, DEMOCRACY AND KING
BHUMIBOL'S POLITICAL INTERVENTIONS IN THAILAND.................................................................224

Contemporary View on Thai Monarchy........................................229
Dynamics of Political System: Representative Democracy and Military Rule...............................................................230
Monarchy and Democracy..................................................234
Monarchy and Political Conservatism......................................236
The Monarchy and Democratization.........................................238
Is Constitutional Monarchy Desirable?......................................240
Monarch and Thai Politics....................................................244
Buddhist Monks' Protest in Thailand........................................248
Monarchy and Thai Cultural Identity: Buddhism as State
Religion.............................................................................249-251

CHAPTER VI: CONCLUSION.............................................252

Concluding Observation........................................................262-265
Appendix i- xi....................................................................266-278
References..........................................................................279-347