Acknowledgement

An awesome group of people accompanied me during my PhD work. Although the list of individuals I want to thank is beyond the limits, I would like to convey my gratitude to the following persons for their guidance, encouragement, support, and care in my humble acknowledgement.

I wish to express my deepest sense of gratitude to Prof. Faujdar Ram for his supervision, advice, and guidance to me. While I did not show exceptional academic performance in Master of Population (MPS) in 2009-10 at International Institute for Population Sciences, he became ready to supervise my PhD dissertation. I am grateful to him for all his suggestions, critical comments, and extreme cooperation while conceptualizing, implementing, and writing my thesis. During the four years, whenever I met him, I was delighted and gained more confidence to complete this work well within time. I would like to do research work under his guidance in future also.

I gratefully acknowledge my PhD committee member Prof. P. Arokiasamy, Professor and Head, Department of Development Studies, IIPS for his contribution and encouragement for the completion of this research work. His conceptual clarity and originality nourished my intellectual maturity to complete my PhD work.

I would like to thank Dr. Manoj Alagarajan, Assistant Professor, Department of Development Studies, IIPS, who kindly agreed to be a member of PhD committee and gave useful comments and suggestions while conceptualizing my thesis.

I owe a lot to Prof. Usha Ram, Professor and Head, Department of Public Health and Mortality Studies for the timely completion my PhD thesis. She is my source of inspiration for hard working to learn new thing. Being average student, I learnt a lot of new ideas and methods, just because of her guidance and encouragement during my PhD work. Her critical evaluation of my PhD proposal helped me to make my thesis more comprehensive and focused. Above all, her inspiring words made lots of difference in my PhD work.

My PhD work would have been in different direction if I had not met Prof. Sulabha Parasuraman while searching for suitable topic for PhD. She encouraged me to work in the field of population and development in India, and helped me to conceptualized research proposal of my PhD.
I am fortunate to have Dr. Santosh Kumar, Assistant Professor, Economics and International Business, Sam Houston State University, Texas, USA as one of my PhD committee members. I am much indebted to him for his valuable contributions, constructive criticisms, and correction in this thesis. I am grateful to him in every possible way and hope to keep up our collaboration in the future.

Health economist Dr. Ashish Singh, Assistant Professor, at S. J. Mehta School of Management, IIT, Mumbai has played very important role in completion of my PhD dissertation. His valuable comments and suggestions, on the first draft of my PhD thesis, helped me to improve the quality of my PhD thesis. He also helped me to do the English edition of this thesis.

I would also acknowledge Dr. Abhishek Singh, Associate Professor, Department of Public Health and Mortality Studies, IIPS, for his advices and providing me background information on National Family Health Surveys and Sample Registration System, which were quite useful to understand potentiality and limitation of those datasets.

I must thank to Prof. Laishram Ladu Singh, Prof. R. B. Bhagat, and Prof. S. K. Mohanty for their valuable suggestions on theory and conceptual framework during my PhD proposal.

I completed my PhD work, while staying in IIPS hostel; therefore, I must thank Prof. B. Paswan and Prof. Chander Shekhar for allowing me to stay in the hostel.

Valuable comments and suggestions on my PhD synopsis by Prof. S. K. Singh and Dr. Murali Dhar helped me to critically evaluate and find out the limitation of my PhD work and related policy recommendations.

I extend my thanks to IIPS Academic Registrar and staffs for smooth furnishing and cooperation to maintain my PhD related academic record. I also acknowledge Mr. D. D. Mestri and his awesome library staff for their immense help and cooperation while accessing books and articles.

The great intellectual environment of IIPS and academic support of friends from this institute played an important role to complete this research work. I will never forget my first and last roommate Praveen Chokhandre for his extended supporting during my PhD work. Four of my friends- Raj Kumar Verma, Manisha Dubey, Ankita Shukla, and Ashish Upadhyay helped me to compile the macro level data set to accomplish two of my PhD dissertation objectives. I must thank Aparna Mukherjee and Taniya Basu for theirs’ comments and English edition of my PhD proposal and synopsis. My whole-heartedly thanks go to friends such as Uttam, Adrita, Subhranshu, Joemet, Abdul, Nandi and all other hostel mates for creating joyous atmosphere at IIPS. Finally, I would like to thank Ashsish Upadhyay for the final correction of the thesis.

There is no way to acknowledge my Maa, Papa, and Didi a support for each of my endeavour including PhD. I just bow my head to them. I also thank all my extended family members for their love and good wishes.

Finally, I would like to thank everybody who was important to the successful realization of the thesis, as well as expression my apology that I could not mention everyone personally.

Last but not the least, I thank the one above all of us, the omnipresent God for keeping me cheerful, healthy and motivated throughout the PhD thesis completion period.

Kaushalendra Kumar
