ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A journey is easier when you travel together. Interdependence is certainly more valuable than independence. This thesis is the result of five years of work whereby I have been accompanied and supported by many people. It is a pleasant aspect that I have now the opportunity to express my gratitude for all of them.

The first person I would like to thank is my supervisor Prof. M.N. Panini. I owe him lots of gratitude for having me shown this way of research. He could not even realize how much I have learned from him. Besides of being an excellent supervisor, Prof. Panini was a good friend to me.

My sincere gratitude also goes to all faculty of Sociology especially HOD Avijit Pathak, Prof. Nandu Ram, Prof. Dipankar Gupta, Prof. Anand Kumar, Prof. Eshanul Haq, Dr. Vivek Kumar, Dr. Nilika Merhotra, Dr. Jodhka; for their ideals and concepts have a remarkable influence on my academic career.

During this work I have collaborated with many friends for whom I have great regard, and I wish to extend my warmest thanks to all those who have helped me with my work. All my friends and classmates gave me the feeling of being at home at University and extend their support at the best time of need. Abraham, Biren, Iskender, Valentina, Kapil, Jajo, Simran, Minto, Mohan, Samu, Robert, Rajesh, Jasabant, Lalit, Martin, many thanks for being friend with me. I thank my brother Sindhu, for helping me in finding right way of putting numerical data. I had the pleasure to be friend with Imo who provided strict and extensive comments that had a direct impact on the final form and quality of this thesis.

I am also grateful for the department of Sociology at JNU for providing me an excellent work environment during the past years and non teaching staffs Mr. Negi, Mr. Jhagiani, Mr. Bhart, Mr. Bhupender and Mr. Gupta for their cheerful assistance. I would also like to thank University Grant Commission (UGC) for the JRF scholarship; the financial support not only enabled material well-being but also the social value of the research.

I would like to say a big 'thank-you' to all the people especially inhabitants of village Paria who agreed to be interviewed by me for this thesis in some form or another, and who had to put up with my interviewing technique (or lack of it). I am grateful for NGO Parvartan and Agragamee who provided in-depth insight of the districts. I would also extend my appreciation to Panchayat members of Chheliomal, Members of Cooperative Society Karlapada and Bank of Karlapada. Office of DRDA, District Collectorate, WM Bhawanipatna, Office of Soil Conservation and Agricultural Extension provided me necessary information for the thesis. Also thanks to those people who provided me with so much whether they know it or not: Dr. Sartik, and my childhood friend Poorna. I also thank all fellowship members especially Mr. and Mrs. Lee and Dr. Joseph for their inspiration and prayers. The principle, to see the good in everything and be a constructive part of the whole, made me feel responsible to participate in seminar and discussion forum. These discussions helped me to keep the universal spirit that is essential for both religion and scientific research.

I am very grateful for my parents, for their love and patience during the PhD period. They have lost a lot due to my research away from home. Without their encouragement and understanding it would have been impossible for me to finish this work. My special gratitude is due to my brothers, my sisters and their families for their loving support. My loving thanks are due to Lily, Boje, Shyam and Laxmikant.
