“Too often we underestimate the power of a touch, a smile, a kind word, a listening ear, an honest compliment, or the smallest act of caring, all of which have the potential to turn a life around.”

- Leo F. Buscaglia

This dissertation is an outcome of my five-year journey that carried me to different locations of research, introduced to various fields of knowledge and provided a profound learning experience both as professional and personally. I am deeply grateful to all those who directly or indirectly extended their support, provided assistance and encouragements during my Doctoral study. Today, I take this occasion to retrospect to remember and acknowledge those individuals with their love, support and blessing I am completing my thesis.

Sometimes thank you is just not enough to express your feelings of gratitude, I do feel the same when I remember Dr. Ritambhara Hebbar, whom I consider as my mentor. In these years, she consentingly supported, read several drafts, provided thought provoking idea and guidance, pushed me to do my best through her criticisms and appreciations. As a guide, she kept me from falling into the world of jargons and her keen interest and observations have brought clarity and readability in this work. Dear ma’am, thank you for providing me much needed support and guidance in the process, for achieving my dream.

I would like to thank my Doctoral Advisory Committee members Prof. Lawrence Surendra (Department of Economics and Cooperation, University of Mysore) and Prof. Pushpendra Kumar Singh (Director, Centre for Social Studies, Surat) for their valuable comments, suggestions. I thank Dr. Madhushree Sekher and Dr. Amita Bhide from TISS, for giving their insightful perspectives during thesis synopsis and research proposal stage respectively.

I would like to thank Indian Council of Social Science Research for awarding me the Doctoral Fellowship. It provided me the much-needed financial stability to engage with my PhD work.

Fieldwork is the best stage in my PhD journey and showed that you could learn about yourself in unexpected places and circumstances. The whole experience was indeed a revelation for me. In this process, the important people who involved are my interlocutors; I express my deepest gratitude with you all, for providing complete cooperation in the process of my study. I am thankful to the authorities of Varanashi Research Foundation; acknowledge the effort put up by the Sanjeev Banta, Sesappa Naik, Chandappa Poojari, Manjunath Rai for getting introduced to the local voice of farmers, Sundara Naik for helping in different project related documents. I thank Vishwanatha and Abdul Kunji for their support and assistance. A special thanks to Narayana Upadhyaya for providing inputs on certification.

I would thank Dr. G.K Veeresh, the former Vice Chancellor of the UAS, Bangalore and Dr. Dev Kumar, former director of Organic Farming Research Station, Shimoga for giving insights about the politics of organic farming. I am very grateful to Prof. R. S Deshpande, Director of ISEC for providing access to the concerned authorities in the agriculture department.

A special acknowledgement to National Institute of Advanced Studies (Bangalore), University of Agriculture Science (Bangalore) and Institute for Social and Economic Change (Bangalore), Organic Farming Research Station (Shimoga), Mangalore University, Mysore University, Varanashi Research Foundation Library and thankful to many people from my field who have gave me an access to their personal libraries.

I am thankful to Doctoral Student Office and Staff members for their support and cooperation. I would thank the staff of Sir Dorabji Tata Memorial Library for providing me all necessary professional assistance and extend my gratitude to staff members of Computer Centre section for assisting in time of my needs.

I would express my gratitude to Ashwin Joseph for his discussions in the initial stage of the thesis, K S Narayana for his help in thesis proof reading and editing, Madhu for helping in finding facts, Sudarshan, for providing insights on Karnataka agriculture, Jafar for assisting in getting access to books, Anitha for proving all necessary support during my stay in Mysore University.

In these many years, 4th floor PhD hostel has became my second home, and bonding with the people who resided here has added incredible life experiences, due to the companionship of Theresa, Toli, Megha, Preet, Jennie, Lata, Tara, Vandana, Rohini, Anjali, Bhuvana, Amrutha, Rashmi, Ujwala, Bashu, Suman and Nandini. I am thankful to all my friends, Mithila, Naveen, Prachita, Neelakanta, Aravind, and Parveen, for encouraging and supporting during the PhD process. Vasudha thank you being a listening ears to my stories.
No one is prepared for the loss of loved one, but when we face it, it is the most devastating experience a person could endure in life. During such a difficult situation, Yoga helped me like a healing portion. I would thank Veena and Mahajan for introducing and today it is part of my everyday life.

Whatever I am today is because of my family, who have showed their love, compassion, never-ending encouragements. My extended family members have been my strength during difficult moments, believed, trusted in my abilities and supported all my decisions. Amma, Appa and Alaka, I really do not have a word to express as how I am feeling at this moment. My humble admiration and gratitude abounds for keeping faith in my ability. Mayur, falling in love with you was one of best stage in my life and you always gave me the space, support, made my life comfortable and memorable. Without your, continuous perseverance and cooperation this PhD journey would have been impossible.
