The 5-6 years of my Ph.D. has been eventful. Like any other period of life, good people and friends are needed to help a person go through the ups and downs. My supervisor Arindam Bhattacharyya has not only given me the opportunity to work under his guidance but allowed me to explore myself as a researcher, which I now realize is the most important aspect of learning to do science. The way he has gave trust in me like a “guardian” in the initial years of my Ph.D. is remarkable considering that none of my experiments were working out at that time and it is easy to lose confidence in a beginner young fellow who is attempting to discover his feet in the instabilities of research. His trust not only helped me to stay motivated and focused through my struggling years, but also made me more responsible. It always was in my subconscious mind that I need to prove Sir’s confidence in me right which made me push myself harder that extra bit. I thank you Sir for being so supportive and helping me become the researcher that I am today.

To come through the tough periods in life, people need inspiration. Borda (Kali Kinkar Mondal) and Dadu (Narayan Chandra Biswas), you have been my constant inspiration for the last 12 years. I remember how much happy both of you were when you got the news that I have started doing Ph.D. I wish you stayed with us long enough to witness the day on which I become a Doctorate. I know that your blessings will always be there with me and your absence will be a reminder for me of the importance of the work that I am doing.

Bordi (Nilima Mondal) amd Thakuma (Lakhimoyee Biswas), I realize you two expect me to join a good job that you may see in your lifetime. I expect you will remain with us live till I reach my goal. I am sorry for my inability to spend some good times with you.

It does not happen many times in one’s life that he/she is worried that words may not do justice to the sacrifice done by another person. If anybody has the equivalent right to celebrate the accomplishment of my Ph.D., then it is Gunjan Mandal. She was a constant reminder that I am not in this struggle alone. In her I found a junior and a friend on whom I knew I can always count on professionally as well as personally. She has been my companion through this demanding journey of Ph.D. Gunjan, this thesis belongs to you as much as it does to me.

I would like to thank my senior Suman Sengupta for supporting me learn my first steps of research work. I found a good human being in you and always trying to become a person with a soul like you. You always tried to boost me as much as you can. Every Ph.D. student needs a person with constant encouragement at all circumstances and for me that person is you, Sougata Da (Roy Chowdhury). Besides Sir, you too contributed to shape my entire thesis. More than a senior, you are my teacher and elder brother. Hope I will have the opportunity to work with you again in coming future.

Subhadip Da (Kundu), Soumya Da (Chatterjee), Santanu Da (Paul), my sincere gratitude to you. You had helped me to acclimatize in the new environment when I first joined the lab. Thank you all for the time you spent for me and with me.

The two people with whom I have shared the lab space for the entire tenure of my Ph.D. are Samir Jana and Shauryabrota Dalui. I also appreciate the moral support I received from Suman Da (Purohit), Samrat Sarkar, Hirak Da (Dey) and Priyobrata Sinha. I owe your friendship and warmth you extended to my tenure in the lab. I am thankful to my other labmates Kaustav Chakraborty, Nabanita Ghosh, Annesha Chatterjee, Anirban Sengupta, Soumya Chatterjee (Jr.), Poulomi Khamaru, Sayan Chakraborty. I wish we could have a replay of such wonderful memories. I’ll really miss your company after leaving the lab.

My sincere regards to Prof. Dmitry V. Kuprash. You never said no whenever I asked you for any sort of help: may it be your recommendation or manuscript correction.
Kind assistance from Dr. Arnab Gupta, Dr. Palash Kumar Mandal, Dr. Vivek Malhotra, Dr. Rahul Roy Chowdhury, Prakriti Roy, Mayri Nath, Kayum Da (Alam), Debashis (Nag) is greatly acknowledged.

I am thankful to all the patients and their families who have participated in this study and my sincere thanks to the nursing staffs of SGCC & RI.

My sincere respect and thanks to my teenage teacher Arun Chatterjee. Sir, I know you will feel proud to see me becoming a doctorate.

Thanks to all the scholars of the department of Zoology, University of Calcutta.

I am especially thankful to my friend Debasish, who became my brother in the course of last 12 years. Without your help and courage, I would not have completed my Ph.D. I am also grateful to my other friends Sourabh, Saikat, Sourav, Avik. Life becomes easier when someone has friends like you.

Didi and Goutam Da, words will be in scarce if I am going to mention your contribution.

I would like to say a heartfelt thank to you Baba, Maa for always believing in me, encouraging me to follow my dreams and being there like an “umbrella”.

I am thankful to Convener and members of the Ph.D. committee of Department of Zoology, University of Calcutta.

I am grateful to CSIR for providing me fellowship during my Ph.D. tenure and DST, Govt. of India for grant support to perform my experiments.

I hope I will some time or another have the capacity to add to the advancement of my nation and the general public especially patients suffering from cancer.
