This thesis is the end of my journey in obtaining my Ph.D. I have not traveled in a vacuum in this journey. This thesis has been kept on track and been seen through to completion with the support and encouragement of numerous people including my well wishers, my friends, colleagues and various institutions. At the end of my thesis I would like to thank all those people who made this thesis possible and an unforgettable experience for me. At the end of my thesis, it is a pleasant task to express my thanks to all those who contributed in many ways to the success of this study and made it an unforgettable experience for me.

At this moment of accomplishment, first of all I pay homage to my father, Late. Shashi Kant Verma. This work would not have been possible without his guidance, support and encouragement. Under his guidance I successfully overcame many difficulties and learned a lot. I can’t forget his hard times. Despite of his ill health, he used to review my thesis progress, give his valuable suggestions and made corrections. His unflinching courage and conviction will always inspire me, and I hope to continue to work with his noble thoughts. I wish his soul roots in peace and solace in the heaven. I can only say a proper thanks to his through my future work. It is to his that I dedicate this work.

This thesis grew out of a series of dialogues with my supervisor Dr. R.P. Raghava. Through his Socratic questioning, he brought me closer to the reality I had initially perceived, eventually enabling me to grasp its rich complexity. His comments on chapter drafts are themselves a course in critical thought upon which I will always draw. His capacity to combine critique with an immediate empathy and commitment towards workers and others engaged in struggle will always inspire me. He was at the centre of our relationship, turning water into wine with his music, quick wit and incredible imagination. Amid the laughter and chapter drafts, He was always there to offer quiet encouragement, at times embarrassed by his own extraordinary kindness.

I am also extremely indebted, Dr. Nisha Raghava, Botany Department, for her valuable advice, constructive criticism and her extensive discussions around my work. I am very much thankful to her, for picking me up as a student at the critical stage of my Ph.D. I gratefully acknowledge for her understanding, encouragement and personal attention which have provided good and smooth basis for my Ph.D. tenure.

I warmly thank to Dr. V.K. Singh, Principal and Dr. Anil Kumar Srivastava, HOD for providing necessary infrastructure and resources to accomplish my research work.

To my mother, Mrs. Indu Bala Shrivastava, who continues to learn, grow and develop and who has been a source of encouragement and inspiration to me throughout my life, a very special thank you for providing a ‘writing space’ and for nurturing me through the months of writing. And also for the myriad of ways in which, throughout my life, she has actively supported me in my determination to find and realize my potential, and to make this contribution to our world. During the inevitable ups and downs of conducting my research, she often reminded me life’s true priorities by what could be the influence of a loving God. This helped me a lot to work for hours together tirelessly. I doubt that I will ever be able to convey my appreciation fully, but I owe her my eternal gratitude. This thesis is a small tribute to an exceptional mother from a daughter still anxious to learn from her.

I am forever grateful to my elder brother, Vishal Srivastava, whose foresight and values paved the way for a privileged education and who willingly devoted so much time in giving guidance to me.

I would also like to thanks to my brother cum guardian, Abhishek Srivastava for his assistance and willingness to discuss ideas at their initial stage and enabled me to bypass the more persistent obstacles to thesis completion. I am much indebted to him for his valuable advice in my work, spending his precious times to read this thesis and gave his valuable suggestions, and to my bhabhi, Pragati Srivastava who gently offer counsel and unconditional support at each turn of the journey of the research road.

It is also a pleasure to mention my brother cum friend, Dr. Kshitij, lecturer, Botany Department, who’s editing suggestions and precise sense of language contributed to the final copy. He provided decisive and energetic support during the write-up stage, clearing the path towards thesis completion in his solution-oriented way, for his sincere encouragement and inspiration throughout my research work and lifting me uphill this phase of life.

It’s my fortune to gratefully acknowledge the support of some special individuals. Words fail me to express my appreciation to my sisters, Advocate Sweta Srivastava and Karizama for their support, generous care and the homely feeling at every stage of this journey. They were always beside me during the happy and hard moments to push me and motivate me. I can see the good shape of my thesis because of their help and suggestions in formatting the entire thesis. A journey is easier when you travel together. Interdependence is certainly more valuable than independence. This thesis is the result of them who were always there when I really needed. Thank you doesn’t seem sufficient but it is said with appreciation and respect to both of them for their support, encouragement, care, understanding and precious friendship.

Besides this, my special acknowledgements to several people have knowingly and unknowingly helped me in the successful completion of this research work.
