

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The pursuit of higher education is a very challenging and demanding process. My research effort would not have materialized if it were not for the support, encouragement, and words of wisdom from different people. This research thesis is a result of the efforts of many who contributed, directly or indirectly, believing in my vision for better governance in cooperatives and, in particular a well laid system of cooperative leadership in the Puducherry Union Territory. I wish to express sincere gratitude to these individuals.

It's a great pleasure to record my deep sense of gratitude to my Supervisor, Dr.K.Ravichandran, Professor and Head, Department of Cooperation, Gandhigram Rural Institute, Gandhigram, for his attention, concern, intellectual comments, suggestions and prompt feedback on my research work during sessions of deliberation we have had. My research sojourn under the guidance of Dr.K.Ravichandran enabled me to think more deeply, to manage time, meet deadlines and keep targets. His intellect and academic deliberations I respect and appreciate. It is a tribute to him that the work could reach conclusion well within the time-frame.

I would also like to thank the authorities of Gandhigram Rural Institute, Gandhigram, who picked me up to do doctoral research in part time and carried me through.

I extend my heartiest thanks to Mr. Dinesh, Director General, National Council for Cooperative Training, New Delhi and Mr. Mohan Mishra, Secretary, National Council for Cooperative Training, New Delhi for their sustained support in carrying out this work.

I am also grateful to the Dean FRSS and all the faculty members of Department of Cooperation, Gandhigram Rural Institute, Gandhigram, for their cooperation and help from time to time during the course of study.

I convey special acknowledgement to Dr. FrankRatnakumar, Rtd., Vice Principal, T.B.M.L, Poraiyar, who exceptionally inspire and enrich me as a researcher. I am indebted to him more than he knows.

All the respondent leaders (Presidents and Vice presidents) of Cooperatives in Puducherry Union Territory, who helped me in getting the responses during their precious time, are gratefully acknowledged. The study would have been meaningless without their support. The brains behind all the websites and other multimedia contents referred and used in the dissertation are also gratefully acknowledged.

It is a pleasure to express my gratitude wholeheartedly to Thiru. R. Muralidaran, Deputy Registrar of Cooperative Societies, Puducherry, for his kind hospitality during my stay in Puducherry Union Territory. He was with me as a shadow in collection of data during the whole survey.

I record my sincere thanks to all the Librarians of Gandhigram Rural Institute, Gandhigram, and NABARD, Lucknow, VAMNICOM, Pune, ICM, Hyderabad, for their kind co-operation and generous support during my research.

My time in Gandhigram University was made enjoyable in large part due to the many friends and groups that became a part of my life. I am very grateful to the research scholars who always encourage me and support me in completion of my thesis.

Nalini, my wife whose encouragement, love and unwavering support for me to reach this goal has been the greatest gift. Our friendship and partnership made this dream a reality.

Special thanks to my son Kevin and daughter Eniya whose genuine interest and support have helped me along this path. Specifically, I want to recognize my parents, for their affection, care, inspiration and benediction which I received from them, who have lit the flame of learning in me and enabled me to reach the footsteps of my long cherished goal and at every stage of my life. Whatever, I am today is because of their prayer, love and blessings.

And finally thanks to God, who granted me this opportunity to fulfill this wish of my heart. This was an incredible opportunity and even though I might not have find out what I've expected to find, I've discovered many more unexpected and significant lessons that definitely will improve my future.
