ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My grateful thanks are due to a number of people who helped me in various capacities during the course of preparation of my research work of whom I would like to mention in particular, Dr A Ramanathan, PhD., Professor in Animal Husbandry, Faculty of Agriculture and Animal Husbandry, Gandhigram Rural Institute - Deemed University, Gandhigram, without whose able and sincere guidance, this thesis would not have assumed its concrete form today;

The Dean and Faculty of Agriculture and Animal Husbandry, Gandhigram Rural Institute - Deemed University, Gandhigram, for all facilities provided;

Dr M K Narayanan PhD, Assistant Professor, Department of Veterinary Surgery and Radiology, College of Veterinary and Animal Sciences, Mannuthy, Thrissur, without whose solid advice and support this thesis would not have attained its final shape;

The Director of Animal Husbandry, Kerala, who consented to my part time research work;

Dr Rajankutty PhD., Professor and Head (Retd), Department of Veterinary Surgery and Radiology, College of Veterinary and Animal Sciences, Mannuthy, Thrissur, for initiating me into the deep world of research;

Dr V Ramakumar, PhD., former Secretary of the Veterinary Council of India, who encouraged me to take up this field of study:

Dr Devi. S S, Dr Lekshmi V and Sri John who provided me with their excellent professional skills, teamwork during surgery, and unforgettable timely support throughout the period of my research work;

Dr Somasekharan Pillai M, Associate Professor, University College, Thiruwananthapuram, for the insight he offered me on the statistical aspects of this study;
Dr Anjaly Krishnan, whose loving help at moments of extreme difficulty, during the course of this study can never be forgotten;

and Sri Raju V Antony, Teacher, St Joseph’s Higher Secondary School, who magnanimously placed at my disposal his excellent photographic skills.

Words can never adequately express my indebtedness to my husband,

Sri P J Varghese, whose understanding, sympathy and solid help, eased the troubles of many a weary day and whose enthusiasm for my research work never waned throughout the years despite the innumerable inconveniences that he patiently put up with;

my three children, Nissi, Jeremy and Joshua, whose constant love and encouragement have been the driving force of my life and during this study;

my uncle and aunt, Sri Alex Thomas and Smt Suja Alex, whose patient hearing and quick reassuring actions gave me the strength to move on during the tough times;

and my only sister, Smt Susan Oommen, who helped in ironing out the many difficulties that cropped up at the final stage of the preparation of this thesis.

It is difficult to single out individuals who have contributed in many ways for the completion of this thesis. The author recalls with affection, the assistance given by one and all.
