ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I do not find words to express my deep gratitude, profound obligation and indebtedness to my teacher and supervisor Dr. J.K. Sahu, Department of History, Angul College, for his loving care and able guidance but for whose help the thesis would not have been a reality. I cherish, with heavy heart, the imperishable memory of late Dr. N.K. Sahu, ex-Vice-Chancellor, Sambalpur University and a historian of repute, for his learned advices, till a day before he breathed his last. My obligations are due to Dr. N.K. Dash, H.O.D., History, Rajendra College, Bolangir and Dr. D. Chopdar, Lecturer in History, P.G. Department, Sambalpur University for permitting me to go through their theses. I am thankful also to Dr. P.K. Mishra, Professor and the teaching staff, Department of History, Sambalpur University; Principal and Staff of Barpali College; Sri Binodananda Sahu, Lecturer in History; my teacher Sri B.N. Khadanga, my friends Sri A.K. Thait, Sri P. Behera and Sri S.N. Maharana for their encouragement and co-operation.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not say a word about my uncle Sri N.B. Singh, M.L.A., Bijepur and my wife Smt. Chandraprabha Ray, who are a constant source of inspiration in my humble endeavour.

Last but not the least I thank Sri B.G.K. Subrahamanyam for correctly and neatly typing the thesis.
