ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In the path of understanding and expanding my knowledge of the Thai economy, I am indebted to the many people who helped me and supported me in this endeavour in India and at Bangkok.

To begin with, I am deeply indebted to a wonderful person and an embodiment of magnificent faculties, my supervisor Prof. Jayati Ghosh, who has been a source of great inspiration for me. I’m indebted to her for her crucial guidance, generous affection and constant encouragement, which sustained and gave me confidence through academic and non-academic trials and tribulations. Her vast knowledge and understanding of the economic performance and problems of the Southeast Asian countries, which got me started on this research in 1996, has been a great boon to me in equipping me with the necessary intellectual skills. Without her abundant support, I would not have come this far in my academic efforts.

I have also benefited from the knowledge and guidance of Prof. C.P. Chandrasekhar, Centre for Economic Studies and Planning (JNU) and Dr. Biswajit Dhar, Professor and Head, Centre for WTO Studies, Indian Institute of Foreign Trade (IIFT), New Delhi for their most pertinent comments on the thesis and support at various points of time. I am also thankful to Dr. V.R. Panchamukhi, Founder Director-General, Research and Information Systems for the Non-Aligned and Other Developing countries (RIS), for his encouragement and support during my tenure at RIS.

I am extremely grateful to the Teen Murti Jawaharlal Nehru Memorial Trust for instituting a most significant scholarship for supporting Indian Ph.D. scholars’ fieldtrips in other Asian countries. I’m most thankful to them for granting me the prestigious Nehru Memorial Fellowship in 1998, which made my fieldtrips in Bangkok, Thailand possible.

My debts accumulate further, when I cherish my experiences in Bangkok, where I came to know many excellent persons and academicians. I am deeply indebted to Prof. Amara Pongsapich (Director, Chulalongkom University Social Research Institute-CUSRI), Prof. Suwattana Thadaniti (Deputy Director, CUSRI), and Prof. Pasuk Phongpaichit (Economics Faculty, Chulalongkom University) for being the reasons of my association with CUSRI. I am grateful to CUSRI for allowing me to be a Visiting Fellow at the Institute during 1998-2000, which facilitated my entire field trip to Bangkok. I extend my warm gratitude especially to Dr. Suwattana, for having been such a great source of affection and unfailing support for me during my entire stay there. In fact, she has made an art of taking care of people. I have no more words to describe what a wonderful experience it was for me to work under her.

During my stay at CUSRI, I have been most fortunate to be able to take guidance from Prof. Pasuk Phongpaichit, and Dr. Walden Bello (Director of the Focus of the Global South, Bangkok), who helped me formulate my ideas clearly. I’m extremely grateful to them for the valuable time, advice, and discussions they offered me from the very beginning, in spite of being such important personalities. I am grateful to Dr. Pasuk for also giving me many important references to the people I had to meet, and to Dr. Walden for his utmost critical comments and questions during my paper presentation at the Visiting Fellow Lecture Series. I also remember with gratitude all the initial help provided by Kamal Malhotra (then Co-Director at the Focus), Khun Chanida, Khun Ranee, and Nicola Bullard (Deputy Director) of the Focus. I’m also grateful to Dr. Samart Chaisakul of the Chula Economics Faculty, for his time and the crucial advice he gave me before I set forth on my firm-level interviews, and for his most constructive comments in my paper presentation. It is my pleasure to also gratefully acknowledge the help offered by Dr. Nualnoi Treerat, Dr. Jittapatt Kruavan, Dr. Isra Samtisart, and Dr. Phaisal Lekuthai of the Chula Economics Faculty, Dr. Suthiphand Chirathivat (Director, Chulalongkom University European Studies Programme), and Dr. Pakpachong Vadhansindhu, of the Commerce Faculty.

A special thank you goes to Khun Vachira Penroaj, Secretary at CUSRI, for all her loving encouragement, as well as her efficient support in all matters of logistics at CUSRI and elsewhere. My special thanks also to Dr. Abba, Dr. Narumon, Dr. Sirichet, Prof. Suwattana’s Research Assistants (Pi Oi and others), CUSRI Office staff and all others at CUSRI, who were always ready to help me and made me feel so much at home there. My thanks also goes to Khun Suthida at the CUSRI library, the library staff at the Chulalongkorn and Thammasat Universities (especially the Economics Library) for their efficient and kind support. I also want to thank Khun Chaiyos, Khun Pairin and Khun Pinit, friends from the Political Economy Centre of the Economic Faculty, for being so helpful and assisting my work in many ways.

I cannot go on, without remembering Lek and Khun Banjong, only because of whom I was able to carry out firm-level interviews. I’m very thankful to Khun Banjong, who took an active participation in my efforts to carry out these interviews and was a great companion to me in all the trips to the industrial estates. I also take this opportunity to thank all those managers at the companies who gave me interviews, and also the various officials at the BOI, MOI, IEAT, MOF, NSTDA, BOT, and the Customs Department, and all the others who gave their valuable time to offer information and insights through personal interviews. Among many others, I received generous help also from Khun Sumonmarn, Deputy Director General, Department of Industrial Promotion (DIP), Ministry of Industry, Khun Amphon Lekuthai, Fiscal Policy Office, Ministry of Finance, Khun Boontawee Tantisira, Director, National Accounts Division, NESDB, Khun Sirawat Boonperm and Khun Chantana of the Economic Statistics Division, NSO and Khun Chutichat Boonchuwit, NSO, Dr. Amara Sriphayak, Dr. Titanun and Khun Angsupalee at the Bank of Thailand, Dr. Bhavani Dhungana, Dr. Azizul Islam, and Mr. John Williams at the UNESCAP, and Khun Prapat Podhivorakhun, Vice-Chairman of the Federation of Thai Industries. A special thanks to my good friend Khun Duangpong (Tum) at the Bank of Thailand who assisted me with certain Thai research materials and also introduced me to friends at the Bank for my data requirements. I am also indebted to Dr. Peter Brimble for sharing many informative research papers on the electronics and hard disk drive industries in the East Asian region, as well as for providing me with many useful company contacts. Without his utmost generosity and help, my analysis of the electronics industry would have been far less in depth.

My heartfelt gratitude goes to all my friends Li-Kheng Poh, Jim, Marco Mezerra and Kim-Anh Tempelman, all other friends at Focus, Mary Khianget and Tum, Anoo S. Parvathy and Gops, Mini, Sibile Gehring, and Shaji, all of whom contributed in many different ways to making my stay in Bangkok an unforgettable experience. My thanks also to my friends in Delhi, Shalini, Andy, Mayjee, Vijaya, Anu, Jibby, Ramana, and many friends of Murali, for their love and support during my JNU hostel days and after. I would also like to thank the CESP office staff, Rajaji, Bishiji, and Bacha Singhiji for their wholehearted help and support at all times, and particularly to Bishiti and Satishji during submission time. This work had good wishes and help from many others whom I may have missed here, but I take this opportunity to thank all of them.

Last, but not the least, I extend my warmest gratitude to my husband Dr. Murali Kallummal for his love, unwavering support and understanding, in this long journey. Without him, I simply would not have made it this far. Thanks are also due to all in my family for their loving support and encouragement, which I have taken for granted. I cannot wind up without remembering my maternal Uncle and Auntie, but for whom my life would have been far more complicated.

It goes without saying that I am solely responsible for all the errors and omissions in this study and for any inaccuracies or gaps in the understanding of the subject.
