ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I owe my sincere thanks and gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Subodh Narayan Malakar, for his valuable guidance and inspiration right from beginning to the completion of this research. Without his support and suggestions I could not have contemplated this study and completed it. This work stays as much his as mine.

I also wish to thank all Kenyan students and trainees for their valuable suggestions, fruitful personal discussions and input for the questionnaire, which helped me a great deal in this study.

I am very much grateful to the staff member of the University Grants Commission who provided me some very important documents on the Cultural Exchange Programme between India and Kenya for the years 1994-1997. I also thank the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, for providing the primary data. I would stay obliged to the Director, Indian Council for Cultural Relations, for his moral support and also for providing the details of scholarships under which the Kenyan students used to come to the Indian universities.

I received support from a large number of institutions. I would like to record my gratitude for the individual / collective assistance provided by the Association of Indian Universities, National Institute of Educational Planning and Administration, Administrative Staff College of India (Hyderabad), Bureau of Indian Standards, Bureau of Parliamentary Studies & Training, Central Fertilizer Quality Control & Training Institute, Central Institute for Rural Electrification, Central Institute of English & Foreign Languages, Central Institute of Tool Design, Central Scientific Instruments Organization, Centre for Development of Advanced Computing, Comptroller & Auditor General of India, Entrepreneurship Development Institute of India, Fluid Control Research Institute, Human Settlement Management Institute, Indian Institute of Mass Communication, Indian Institute of Production Management, Indian Institute of Remote Sensing, Institute of Applied Manpower Research, Indian Institute of Technology (Roorkee), Institute of Government Accounts & Finance, International Management Institute, International Statistical Education Centre, National Crime Records Bureau, National Institute of Bank
Management, National Institute of Educational Planning & Administration, National Institute of Entrepreneurship, National Institute of Pharmaceutical Education & Research, National Institute of Rural Development, National Institute of Small Industry Extension Training, Research & Information System for the Non-Aligned and Other Developing Countries, Shriram Institute of Business & Information Technology, South India Textile Research Association, TATA Consultancy Services Ltd., Technical Teachers' Training Institute, Telecommunication Consultants of India Ltd, and V.V. Giri National Labour Institute.

I am extremely grateful to Mr. Sarin and Sanjeev Kumar, presently doing his PhD in Centre of West Asian and African Studies and Dr. R Sugathan, for their intellectual guidance and indispensable help in no uncertain ways. I owe so much to them that no words may ever suffice to express.

I wish to express thanks to Prof A.K. Dubey for his enlightening ideas and suggestions. He has been of great help to me which I am unable to put in words. I also wish to thank esteemed Prof. Girijesh Pant, Prof. Ajay Patnaik and Dr. P.C. Jain, who have given many fruitful suggestions, incorporated in this thesis. I also owe my heartfelt thanks to Prof. Gulshan Dietl for her sincere cooperation all through this work.

My thanks are also due to the staff members of the Department of West Asian & African Studies and of various libraries and institutions such as Central Reference Library, Ratan Tata Library, Indian Council of World Affairs, Association of Indian Universities, Indian Council for Cultural Relations, Jawaharlal Nehru University, etc, who have been very helpful and have made available all library facilities needed for the work from time to time.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my father, brother, Sister, wife Neeru, and four year old daughter, Samidha, who have been source of inspiration all through.
