ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The writing of this thesis would not have been possible without the unfailing guidance of my supervisor Prof. Dawa Norbu who far beyond the call of duty has never failed to meet my needs. To him I owe my greatest gratitude and an enormous debt for his constant support, encouragement, ideas, material assistance, patience and gracious help in many ways through all these years.

I am also thankful to Prof. K. Warikoo for assisting me during the course of this study.

I also owe a great debt of gratitude to Joe and Angel for their kindness, generosity and confidence in me. I can only thank them and be worthy of the trust and support they gave me.

Equally important, this work could not have been possible without the generous help and effort of my friends, who have assisted me in various ways especially during the last stage of this work. I thank God for blessing me with such wonderful friends. My special thanks to Asang, Kevi, Moi and Kim for graciously helping me in manifold ways. To Asang for giving me so much of her time. She has been my most vital support right from the beginning. I must also thank her for not letting me go hungry especially during these last two months. To Kevi, who over the years has shown great enthusiasm, support, encouragement and had rendered all sorts of assistance that could not be listed out for want of space. Most of all I thank her for always being there for me. I am most indebted to her and Avino for their great hospitality, not to mention feeding me all these years. Special thanks to Moi for her enthusiastic and ready help, for her delightful and easy company which made my stay in the hostel much better. I am also immensely grateful to Kim for rendering all sorts of assistance, sitting through many nights helping with corrections. Her calm presence is much appreciated.

I am especially grateful to Sree for her valuable suggestions and reading through my whole work which was not easy. I am equally indebted to Lemti who despite her busy schedule, proof-read and gave me valuable comments. Besides Moi, Asang and Beena has equally helped with the proof readings, and pointed out mistakes that were overlooked. All these friends had been a great help – without them I would have been lost.
I also want to thank Lima for typing out my untidy work. It takes patience to decipher my illegible handwriting. I am equally grateful to Akum who has been with me through the final stage of this work- he has helped me from typing, corrections, staying up nights assisting me in every way possible. To Akum I am most grateful for bringing out the final work into print. I am also thankful to Caleb for putting his computer and printer at my disposal, sparing his precious time helping me. I am also grateful to Vungsamawi for graciously helping me in various ways-not to mention staying up the whole night helping Akum with the corrections, to bring this work into shape. I must also thank Bokato for crosschecking my Biblio- which is not an easy task. Thanks also to Ramananda for generously letting me use his computer inspite of having his own work.

I owe a special debt to Aseno who has shown much care and has helped me throughout my stay here in Delhi. I am immensely grateful to her for her generosity and all that she has been to me.

Avery special thanks to my friend Sangeeta (a true celebration of friendship) who has given me immeasurable love, care, time support and sound advice all these years that we have been friends. There is no way to repay friend such as her – I can only be worthy of her friendship.

I must also thank Diki for her inspiration, assistance and company during the crucial period. A special note of thanks must go to numerous friends, Gaina, Bode, Ashe, Azi, Jean, Weezi, Merie, Rinchen for their moral support and encouragement. I would also like to thank Joy, Marie, Rosey, Pema and my floor mates Shoan, Srimiti and Ranjana for their well wishes.

I wish to thank the Tibetan Library and Archives, Dharamsala particularly Pema Yeshi, for putting the resources of the library at my disposal- without which this work would have been incomplete. I also want to thank the JNU library staff as well as the Cultural Centre at the Chinese Embassy for material assistance.

At the risk of sounding like a broken record, I must extend my sincere thanks to my family for helping me over the rough spots during the course of this study.

Errors, if any are mine.
