ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all I must pay my heartiest gratitude to Lord Kalbhairav, the Kotwal of Varanasi, whose blessings were a constant source of inspiration and encouragement, without which I would not have been able to complete the present work.

I am deeply indebted to my revered supervisor, Prof. S.K. Mohanty, Head of the Department of Geography, Utkal University, whose kind stimulating guidance and valuable suggestions have made it possible for me to complete this work successfully.

I owe my sincere regards to Prof. S.N. Tripathi, former Head of the Department, Utkal University, and Dr. P.K. Kar for the deep sense of support and interest they have shown in my work.

I also thank the various government and semi-governmental authorities for providing necessary and relevant information required for the present work.

I fail in my duty if I do not feel obligated to my family members, especially, towards my mother and sister Soni, whose constant encouragement was always on the offering to boost my morale.

I am thankful to my brother Vaibhav who helped me throughout this work starting from field survey to typing.

It is my pleasure to extend my heartiest and deep sense of gratitude and love to my father Prof. S.B. Singh, whose deep insight was the key in the completion of the present work and, without his constant encouragement this work would not have seen the light of the day.
