ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, I would like to express my sincere thanks to my supervisor Prof. I. N. Mukherjee for his patient and steady encouragement and also for kindly helping out with the various obstacles that proved to be so daunting. Through the years, he has been a source of constructive intellectual stimulus and critical feedback. It is due to his efforts that I could complete my work comprehensively.

Thanks is also due to Prof. S. R. Chakravarty under whom I completed my M. Phil. and started on my Ph.D. research and who has lent me support and encouragement at every stage. I also take this opportunity to thank all the faculty members of the South Asia Studies Division in the School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University for providing an environment conducive to research.

My gratitude and thanks to the staff and members of the various libraries, both in India and Bangladesh. In India, the JNU library, the Centre for Women's Development Studies library, the Nehru Memorial and Museum Library, the British Council library, the United Nations Information Service Library, and the World Bank library have been indispensable in providing me materials and books without which research would not have been possible. In Bangladesh, the Community Development Library, the Bangladesh Institute of Development Studies, the BRAC University Library, the Proshika Library, Bangladesh Public Library, the Women for Women Library and the NGO Affairs Bureau Library have really guided me in collecting appropriate materials.

Prof. Meghna Guhathakurta of the Department of International Relations, University of Dhaka was crucial in guiding me to the concerned NGOs and libraries. I must also mention that I had the most intensive debates on the topic with her. Other NGO members whom I consulted and who helped me with discussions and visits to the villages are Dr. Zeba Mahmud, Rabeya Yasmin, M. Tajul Islam, Dr. Ferdousi Nehar and Hafiza Zahir (BRAC); Muhammad Masrural Islam, Harun Ur Rashid, J. K. Baral, Eva, Kalpana Rani (Proshika); Suman Bhattacharjee (Concern); Md. Moksud Alam (Swanivar Bangladesh) and Anna Minj, Benedict Alo D’Rozario (Caritas).

Special thanks goes to Kohima Daring for putting me up in her place and providing me warm hospitality during my Dhaka stay; Shikha, Shirley Roselyne
Palma and Dr. Pratima Paul Majumdar for guiding me and gaining access to the libraries and Irene for translating the statements of the women beneficiaries of the various NGOs. My stay in Dhaka was made more pleasant thanks to friendly interactions with Tripoli, Deborah and Felicity.

Sincere gratitude goes to Dr. Deepak for specially helping in editing and proofreading my thesis at a crucial juncture of my submission.

I want to thank my parents, my brothers and sister for standing by my side through thick and thin. My two nieces and Magdalene, my sister-in-law, were extremely encouraging.

To all my friends, especially Nandini, Kavita, Levish, Katholy and Grace comes an extra special thank you.

Last but not least, I must thank my typist Mr. Arun and Ashok for patiently typing my thesis.

Needless to say whatever shortcomings may exist in this work are all mine.
