ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

A doctoral thesis is a synthetic product of perseverance of a research scholar, and paternal patience of a supervisor. Such a definition unambiguously underscores the pivotal role played by a supervisor in the consummation of a thesis. Hence, it is spiritually encouraging and inevitable to express my deepest gratitude to Prof. Anirudha Gupta under whose fatherly tutelage I conceived the seminal idea of this thesis and as well nurtured it into such a huge phalanx of inferences and interpretations.

I am also indebted to Prof. Ram Rahul, Prof. KP Mishra, Prof. P.N Murthy, Prof. KR Singh, Prof. Vijay Gupta, Dr. Girijesh Pant, Prof. Ishwari Prasad, Mrs. Veena Sharma, and Prof. Girish Mishra (DU) for their cooperation and inspiration.

A thesis is also a long-span venture. This naturally implies that the scholar has to wade through variegated vicissitudes. To tide over them he requires succour, blessing and loving inspiration emanating from persons having no linkage with the academic cosmos. Certainly, I would not have accomplished this task sans the magnanimity of my family members and other dear ones.

I express my unbounded love and reverence to my father and uncles, Pt. Mahesh Dubey, Pt. Ganesh Dubey, Pt. Sudama Dubey and Pt. Lallan Tiwary respectively. I cannot forget to remember the love and affection of my mother and aunt at this moment. However, I am in utter dearth of words to express my gratitude and respect for my dearmost sister-in-law, Mrs. Saroj Dubey. Her selfless love, sacrifice and inspiration constitute the crux of my spirit of perseverance that spurs me to go up and up both materially and spiritually. I express my love for my nephew and nieces, Ranvijay, Rajni, Raka and Rimjhim who stud my drab life with the shining gems of their love and respect. I do express my sincere appreciation for Meena who strives hard to fulfill my hopes and yearnings despite numerous ordeals and my apathy.

I shall ever remain grateful to Dr. Jagannath Mishra (Ex-CM, Bihar), Mr. SN. Dubey (IAS, Bihar), Tirathraj Kushwaha (Journalist), Upendra Nath Tiwary (Journalist), Pradeep Agarwal (Journalist), DD Singh 'Dada Babu', Narendra Singh 'Gudu', Ravi Motani, Ananta Sahay, Pramod Singh (Mukhia, Valmikinagar), and Bharat Bhushan Dubey (Youth leader) of Champaran, Bihar, Arjun Sharma, Jitendra Nath, PC Sinha, Umeshwar Kumar and Kirwant Sahay of JNU, FA Feroj (Cine person), Hasan Imam (Urdu lyricist), Pratap Narayan Shukla (educationist) and Kameshwar Rai (Supreme Court advocate) for their motiveless cooperation and succour in every realm of my endeavours.

I offer obeisances and thanks to His Holiness Gopal Krishna Goswami, H.H. Loknath Swami, H.H. Dhanurdhara Swami, His Grace Toshan Krishna Das, His Grace Kripa nidhi Das and His Grace Satyanarayana Das of ISKCON for their tremendous spiritual support in my moments of both despondency and elation.

I undertook study trips to Paris, Kinshasa and Nairobi in 1985 in search of materials for this thesis. During my stay in these countries I received overwhelming cooperation from such persons who never knew me before. I do not comprehend how I shall repay them. However, I sincerely express my high regards for Françoise Paumard (Paris), Prof. André du Castel, Research Director of CHEAM (Paris), Anne Malecot and Odette Stein of CHEAM (Paris), M. Jacques Jegou of La Documentation Francaise (Paris), the diplomatic and non-diplomatic staff of the Indian Embassy in Kinshasa, and an old JNUite, Debraj Pradhan, IFS, the former Cultural Attache at the Indian High Commission in Nairobi.

Finally, I express my profound gratitude to Her Grace Sunita Devi Dasi, His Grace Bhurijan Das, His Grace Rasa Raj Das and Manoj Dikshit for helping me operate the computer, enabling me to type out this huge thesis. I especially owe a great deal to His Grace Kaliya Krishna Das, headmaster of ISKCON Gurukul, Vrindavan, for letting me use his printer to bring out this thesis in its present form.
