ABSTRACT

CHAPTER I : INTRODUCTION 1 - 36

(A) Context, Need and Importance of the study.

Education of the Scheduled Tribes with special reference to Orissa.

Mainstreaming the Tribals.

Cognitive Functioning: the concept and it's importance for education.

Affective Adjustment: the concept and it's importance for education.

Academic Achievement: it's relevance for comparing children in various social groups.

(B) Theoretical Framework and constructs proposed to be used.

Wilkin's Theory of Cognitive Style.

Rosenzweig's Theory of Frustration.

Sociometry.
CHAPTER II REVIEW OF RELATED STUDIES.

Studies Focusing on Cognitive Functioning with special reference to:
1) Conservation.
2) Cognitive Style.

Studies Focusing on Affective Adjustment with special reference to:
1) Frustration.
2) Sociometric Status.

Studies Focusing on Academic Achievement.

CHAPTER III METHODOLOGY.

/ Statement of the problem.
/ Assumptions.
Objectives of the study.
Variables.
Organisation and Results of the Pilot Study.
- Hypotheses of the Study.
- Sample Design.
- Tools used for the Study.
/ Research Design.
Procedure for final field work.
/ Statistical Analysis.
CHAPTER IV

RESULTS.

Analysis of Quantitative Data.

Cognitive Functioning of Children.

Affective Adjustment of Children.

Academic Achievement of Children.

Inter-correlationships of Variables.

Step-wise Regression Analysis.

Qualitative Data.

Five Case-studies of the tribal children in Tribal schools.

Five Case-studies of the tribal children in Integrated schools.

Five Case-studies of the Non-tribal children in integrated schools.

Two Case-studies of the Tribal schools.

Two Case-studies of the Integrated schools.
CHAPTER V : DISCUSSION.

Variations in Cognitive Functioning.

Variations in Affective Adjustment.

Variations in Academic Achievement.

Inter-correlations among different Variables.

Prediction of Academic Achievement.

CHAPTER VI : SUMMARY, CONCLUSIONS, IMPLICATIONS AND FUTURE SUGGESTIONS.

The Present Research.

Hypotheses.

Sample.

Variables.

Tools.

Research Design.

Procedure.

Major Findings.

Implications.

Limitations of the Study.

Future Suggestions.
