ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

“It is easy to construct a building. But it is difficult to build a monument like the Taj Mahal.”

Pursuing research for the degree of Ph. D. is a hard task, yet fruitful endeavour. It is indeed a personal achievement yet the journey towards its attainment is seldom a lone effort. For me too many people have been instrumental directly and indirectly in this pursuit and the support and good wishes of each one of them are precious and shall be cherished forever.

First of all, I wish to offer my deepest gratitude to “ALMIGHTY”, the Prime Mover, for bestowing infinite grace upon me, for guiding and inspiring me and for giving me the strength to be determined and focused on my goal against heavy odds.

I am very much indebted to my research guide Dr. G. Y. Shitole, Professor and Head, Department of Commerce, P.G.S.R., S.N.D.T. Women’s University, Mumbai, who has been the foundation of inspiration and whose consistent and able guidance and support encouraged and motivated my energies in the accomplishment of entire research work. Dr. Shitole’s experience in the field and eye for perfection ensured that quality and attractive presentation are not compromised at any point. I am grateful to him for suggesting continuous improvement through extensive review process.

I offer my humble thanks to Dr. Ram Sable, Reader, Department of Commerce and Dr. Sanjay Kaptan, former Head of Department, S.N.D.T. Women’s University, Mumbai for their guidance in administrative procedure and for giving me an opportunity to pursue my doctoral study from the department.

My sincere thanks are due to Prof. Chandrahhas Sheth alumnus of London School of Economics, who has given precious amount of time and talent and had stimulating discussions with me. It has added value to my research work. Prof. Sheth has also helped in analyzing the primary data and applying statistical techniques of coefficient of correlation and tax elasticity to test hypotheses. Big thanks to Smt. Panna Chandrahas Sheth for having looked after me well like a daughter during the time I was doing Ph. D. work at their home.

I express my gratitude to Mr. J. C. Sharma for his resourceful guidance and assistance in conducting pilot survey during the stage of primary data collection and framing the research design.

I would fail in my duty if I do not thank Mr. Jyotirmay P. Verma, retired General Manager of State Bank of India, for his invaluable guidance and development inputs.

I would like to acknowledge the contribution of Shri. Prakash Wagal, the retired civil servant from the Finance Department, Mantralaya, who never refused to answer my queries on the budget of the State Government and gave great amount of feedback. Without his valuable cooperation, it would not have been possible for me to conduct primary data collection in Mantralaya Office in Mumbai.

I also acknowledge with thanks Mr. Suresh Ghorpade, Deputy Secretary MEDC, for always forthcoming to discuss the intricacies of the functioning of the Government. I specially express thanks to the staff of Maharashtra Economic Development Council (MEDC), for providing useful statistical data on budget and industry whenever necessary.

I wish to thank Mrs. Malini Shankar, I.A.S., the Development Commissioner, (Industries), Government of Maharashtra, who has spared precious time for interview and clarified lot of doubts about planning of industry in Maharashtra which has helped in providing practical suggestions.

The most crucial aspect of this thesis was that of field investigation which was conducted in the backward district of Dhule. I am extremely grateful to following government officials for their invaluable guidance and suggestion which has given new direction to my thesis:

1. Mr. Gokul Maware, District Collector, Dhule.
2. Mr. S. A. Parchande, Assistant General Manager, DIC, Dhule.
3. Mr. Dinesh S. Wagh, District Planning Officer, Planning Dept., Dhule.
4. Mr. N. G. Wankhede, District Statistical Officer, Dhule.
5. Mr. Barde, Industrial Inspector, DIC, Dhule.
My special thanks to them for providing information on time and insights into the ethos of the district for a realistic and relevant conclusion.

I owe my sincere thanks to Shri. Amrish Patel, M.L.A. and prominent industrialist in Dhule. His gesture to provide his views on the topic when approached at a short notice is appreciating. He arranged for field visit of his textile industry and gave me a lot of practical knowledge about manufacturing processes of industry.

I would like to thank all my respondents of primary data—Government officials, academicians and research scholars, professors, and lecturers of different colleges whose co-operation enabled me to draw conclusions and findings for this research endeavour. My special thanks also go to,

1. Mr. S. Gaikwad, Joint Secretary, Finance Department, Mantralaya, Mumbai, Government of Maharashtra.
2. Mr. S. S. Sarfare, Senior Accounts Officer, Accountant General, Government of Maharashtra.
3. Mr. G. D. Dighe, Audit Officer, Principal Accountant General (Audit), Government of Maharashtra.
4. Mr. Pravin Mohandas, Section Officer, Commercial Audit, MIDC, CIDCO Branch, Mumbai.
5. Mr. Kukarni, Industry Department, Mantralaya, Mumbai, Government of Maharashtra.

I especially express thanks to Shri. Gaikwad, Charni Road Government Press, for his efforts to collect budget speeches of Ex- and Present Finance Ministers—Part I and Taxation proposals—Part II of Government of Maharashtra from 1995-96 to 2008-09 which gave valuable inputs to the thesis.

I need to mention grateful thanks to Government Departments, specially Industry, Planning and Finance Departments, Mantralaya, Mumbai and also the Directorate of Economics and Statistics for the valuable time they spent to address my special data needs. I also thank Vidhan Bhavan library for making available data on State budget and Directorate of Industries for data on industry statistics in Maharashtra.

I also thank Indira Gandhi Institute of Development and Research (IGIDR), Library, Economic and Political Weekly (EPW) Office at Kandivali, Jawaharlal Nehru Library, Central Library and Asiatic Library at Churchgate for maintaining secondary data which are invaluable to the researcher.

I extend my thanks to the staff of S.N.D.T. office and library for their assistance. Thanks to all my fellow students at S.N.D.T. Women’s University, Mrs. Deepali Moghe, Mrs. Shubhangi Kulkarni and Mrs. Bageshri Bangera, concerning any problem related to the thesis at any point of the day.

I would fail in my duty if I don’t thank to Ex-Principal of S. N. College, Dr. S. B. Singh for constantly stressing on me the importance of pursuing Ph. D. and maintaining quality of higher education which persuaded me to take up this research project.

I owe my sincere thanks to my college trustee Shri. Rohidasji Patil, Chairman, Shri. Shankar Narayan Education Trust, who kept faith in me. I would also like to thank college secretary Shri. Maheshji Mhatre for his good wishes and non-teaching staff of Shankar Narayan College for their support and encouragement to pursue research and for providing college facilities like UGC Research Centre and use of computer, printer, internet, photocopy facility, etc.

I am indebted to librarian and entire staff of S. N. College of Arts and Commerce library. Especially to librarian Mr. Sandesh Dongre and library assistant Ms. Anjali Shinde and library peons Mr. Subodh and Mr. More for extending cooperation and granting permission to use the library till late evening and borrow the books as per my convenience.

Big thanks to Mr. Kapil Verma for typing the whole thesis and making various flowcharts and other diagrams more attractive and colourful.

I am deeply indebted to my father-in-law, Shri. Dattaram Gawde, retired teacher of Godrej School and my mother-in-law, Smt. Nilima Gawde for having immense faith in my capabilities and encouraging me to go in for the Ph. D. degree because they believe in value of education and academic attainments.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude to my parents, Shri. Ravji Malkar and Smt. Vijaya Malkar, for their affectionate upbringing and unconditional support. Their faith in me and encouragement in everything that I endeavoured since my childhood has developed my overall personality.

I would like to specially mention two most important persons in my life, my nine-year old daughter, Shreya and my four-year old son, Aryan, who have suffered the most because of my full-time commitment at college and research work.

Finally I would love to mention the person who gave wholehearted support and helped in all the ways and manners practically made this research work a sweet reality that is my dear husband, Mr. Vinod Gawde (Director of LAMFA Co. and ENPAL Co.).

Grace of God, blessings from elders, guidance from my guide, support of family and friends and wishes of all my students have truly helped me to complete my research work. I wish to acknowledge all these people who have touched my life in ways small and big. I will cherish all the moments of pride, accomplishment, despair and happiness which I experienced during the research work.

Mrs. Anupama Vinod Gawde
