ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Nothing meaningful can possibly be achieved in this universe without the support and cooperation of others. And as one moves ahead in one’s life, sincere acknowledgment thereof is the least one can do. I attempt to do the same with a confession that this research includes contributions from so many and that too in so many varied forms that being exhaustive is not possible. Therefore, at the outset, I tender humble apology to every individual who played a part (directly or even remotely) in some or the other way, but is not mentioned hereinafter, despite best of the efforts.

First and foremost, I am grateful to the Almighty who enabled me to reach at this level and contribute in the form of this research in a world where billions have no option but to starve for food, shelter, education etc.

I thank, from the core of my heart, Prof. (Dr.) Gangotri Chakraborty (Guide) with whom I owe my relationship to destiny. She has been unstinting in giving me her precious time, ideas and constructive criticisms despite her extremely absorbing schedule. I am thoroughly indebted to her (and will remain forever) and express my deep sense of gratitude, though words can hardly do justice to the active help and inspiration which she provided. Her constant encouragement and unfailing patience has contributed a great deal in making this academic endeavour a pleasant exercise. I am sure that our relationship is immensely enriched during the course of this research and we have a lot to look forward to, in the times to come.

I am thankful to Prof. (Dr.) Bimal N Patel (Director, GNLU) for all his support as a head of the institution. He inspired through his tireless hard work and frequent expression of concern regarding completion of the research.

I am grateful to the Almighty for blessing me with some of His finest creations in the form of my friends and colleagues. List is thankfully infinitely long and I thank them all. However, few names deserve specific mention. Mr. Shyam Kishore (for preliminary discussion); Mr. Avinash Bhagi, Dr. Gurujit Singh, Dr. Nidhi Buch, Dr. Ravindra Kumar Singh, Dr. Udayakumara Ramakrishna BN, Prof. (Dr.) Shobhalata V Udapudi, Dr. K Parameswaran, Dr. Girish R, Dr. Harmik D Vaishnav (for thought provoking discussion and suggestions); Dr. William Nunes, Dr. Viral Pandya, Dr. Hiteshkumar Thakkar, Mr. Sushil Goswami, Ms. Garima Goswami, Mr. Sanjeev Choudhary, Ms. Heena Goswami (for constant encouragement and support in varied forms).

I am indebted to GNLU Library staff members – Mr. Lagdhir Rabari, Ms. Avani Vyas, Mr. Kamlesh Parmar, Mr. Hemant Joshi, and Mr. Dinesh Thakor for rendering invaluable help and that too with ever smiling faces. I am sure research on such a topic would not have been possible without their able support. Rich collection of books in library is an outcome of collaborative efforts of my colleagues and I thank them as well as donors for their donated books. I thank Library staff of Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, Gandhi Smarak Sangrahalaya Library,
Sabarmati Ashram, Ahmedabad, School of Law, KIIT University, Odisha, and Institute of Management and Institute of Law, Nirma University, Ahmedabad for their help and rich collection on the subject matter.

One’s family is the true manifestation of the blessings of the Almighty. I remain grateful to my grandparents (both paternal and maternal for laying strong foundation in the family for education). I am thankful to my mother who instilled in me a deep sense of integrity and humility and my father who enabled me to develop a very healthy approach to see the world around me and made me learn, through his conduct, a sympathetic tuning with other beings around. Their confidence in and patience with me never knew any bounds. I thank my sister and nephew for their tremendous support. I thank my mother-in-law and sister-in-law for being very supportive and encouraging throughout the endeavour. I thank my late paternal uncles for their encouragement to work hard and excel in education. I also thank my maternal uncles and aunts under whose unbound care and love I could pursue my higher education. I thank my cousin brother and sister for their support.

My diction fails me to express my indebtedness to my better half. She has been a constant source of encouragement since the day she has joined me in this journey of my life. Her sacrifices are of exceptional nature and beyond description. I am sure I will never be able to adequately make up for varied forms of deprivations of companionship due to my engagements with research.

I thank ICT staff members Mr. Rajesh Dave, Mr. Santosh Thakur and Mr. Girish Prajapati for their timely help as and when needed.

I thank students, whom I got opportunity to teach at various law schools, for inspiring through their sincerity and hard work at their young age.

I thank Transnational Corporations for their innovation in developing quality products and rendering quality services for the society which greatly helped me in smoothly undertaking research, which would otherwise have been an arduous task.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to all known and unknown persons who had directly or indirectly helped me in their own diverse ways in undertaking the research. However, all errors and omissions are my own.

Finally, I dedicate this research to Mother Nature (to whom all owe their origin and are subsumed therein at the end) from which I have taken everything till date without possibly fully realizing its worth. I would consider this effort worthwhile if the research contribute to the existing knowledge and debate on the topic.
