ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A doctoral research work requires a lot of patience and strength to face the difficulties and unforeseen changes in the nature of research. It was due to the constant inspiration and encouragement of Dr. Tahir Asghar, my esteemed Supervisor through which I could reach my academic destination. His deep knowledge, rich talent and wide experience have been a tower of strength for me on my way to complete the work successfully. I have drawn a lot of strength from his affection and cooperation during the years of my academic pursuit.

I express my gratitude to Prof. Ajay Patnaik, Dr. Tulsi Ram and Prof. Shashikant Jha for their inspiration, advice, and moral support during these years. I am very much grateful to other faculty members and staff of the Centre for Russian, Central Asian and East European Studies of the School of International Studies.

A Field Trip Grant accorded to me by the Field Trip Committee of the SIS, at the right stage of my work, immensely facilitated to realise my dream. It enabled me to visit various libraries in the United Kingdom. I express my heart felt thanks to the members of the Committee for being considerate towards me.

In course of my field trip to the United Kingdom, I was immensely privileged to have access to the Libraries of the London University, University of Reading, School of African and Oriental Studies, London School of Economics. I thank the authorities and staff of these libraries for their generous help and pleasant cooperation.

During my days in Reading and London, I was fortunate to interact with eminent scholars in Euro-Asian Studies like Prof. Yelena Kaluzhnova, University of Reading and Central Asian Area Studies, Prof. Bhavna Dave of SOAS and Ms. Evián MacDonald administrative officer of University of Reading and many others.

Prof. Yelena Kaluzhnova was instrumental in giving me an opportunity to access her invaluable personal collections on Central Asia economy. She gave her valuable time for a general discussion on my topic, which enlightened me and broadened my intellectual horizon during interview and discussion sessions with her. I express my deep debt of gratitude to her. I cannot forget the love and affection shown towards me by my London-based friends Dhiren, Saunak and Subash for making my work delightful. I am grateful to them for their kindness and hospitality.
I am thankful to Mr. Sudarshan Aggarwal, Member, NHRC, Mr. Sukumar faculty of political science of Delhi University, and Dr. Bhanumurthy of Institute of Economic Growth, Delhi for their continuous help and cooperation. I have to acknowledge the friendly support of Jayashree, Nilu, Shailaja, Archana Didi, Teju, Elly, Namrata, Mamata, Aradhana, Subrat, Parthasarathi, Gobind, DK, Bijaya, Anup, Santosh, Parthapratim, Kshitib, Rakhal, Reena, Aru Bhaina and Bhabi. They have helped me with all their support, advice, solace and encouragement. I am really thankful to all of them.

The sacrifice of my parents and family members are immeasurable. They have been an enduring source of my inspiration. I am especially indebted to my beloved eldest brother and my ever-loving Bhauja for their incessant love, constant touch and all possible support.

The award of partial assistance to Ph.D scholar of ICSSR came to me as an academic boost at the right time that helped to accomplish the task on time. I convey my special thanks to the ICSSR authorities.

I must record my deep appreciation and heart-felt obligations to the staff of JNU Library, IDS Library and Libraries of IIIT, the New Delhi branch of World Bank, UNDP, UN Information Centre, IEG, DSE and ICSSR’s Asian Documentation Centre etc., who have unhesitatingly assisted in making me available all the relevant materials for my work.

If my thesis has any strength, it is because of help and kindness of the people I came in contact with during my stay in JNU. All efforts have been made to wean out the efforts in this work. However, some errors may have inadvertently been left out.

Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi

Chittaranjan Senapati