ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis has been kept on track, and been seen through completion with the support of numerous people including my well-wishers, my friends, colleagues and my family. Words are always insufficient to acknowledge the help one receives from others. In bringing out this work, the debts of gratitude that I owe are heavy and numerous. I wish to express my gratitude to one and all who helped me in one way or the other in the completion of this work and making it an unforgettable experience.

At this moment of accomplishment, I express my deep sense of gratitude to my Supervisor, Dr. Pawan Kumar Mishra. I am deeply indebted to him for his guidance, criticism and valuable suggestions which enabled me to carry out this work. I was fortunate to have him as my supervisor. Inspite of his busy schedules, he always made himself available to clarify my doubts. He has been a source of continuous inspiration to me. I was able to overcome all the difficulties which came in my way during the research work only because of his continuous valuable guidance and unstinted support. He constantly encouraged me and inspired me to remain focused on my research goal. I shall ever remain grateful to him.

I have no action or words that would be adequate to express my sincere gratitude, appreciation to Prof. (Dr.) Rakesh Verma, Principal, Patna Law College & Dean, Faculty of Law, Patna University for deciding together and accepting this research problem and looked into its progress from time to time, devoting keen interest and extending full co-operation with valuable direction, supervision and guidance from its very inception.
till completion, which culminated in preparing this thesis as successful research.

I would like to express my utmost gratitude to Dr. Md. Sharif, Head P.G. Department of Law, Patna University, for his valuable suggestions time to time in completion of this work.

I owe my fundamental debt of gratitude to Dr. Salim Jawed, Dr. B.K. Gupta, Dr. Y.K. Verma, Dr. Shiv Shankar, Dr. Vani Bhushan, faculty members of the faculty of Law, Patna University, Patna for their encouragement, and regular advice right from the beginning. I have been the beneficiary of him for having discussions in law on various aspects of the present research study.

The staffs of ‘Department Library’ and ‘Patna Law College Library’, has been like a family to me, going out of their way to help me gather information from various sources. I also extend my gratitude to staffs of library of Indian Law Institute, New Delhi, Faculty of Law, University of Delhi, Delhi, Faculty of Law, Jamia Milia Islamia, Delhi, Bar Council of Delhi, Supreme Court Bar Association Delhi, Delhi High Court Bar Association, Delhi, Delhi Bar Association, Delhi etc. for their assistance which was of immense value during the entire course of my work. While thanking these persons, I would also like to thanks all the research scholars for bringing to my notice and discussing with me all the concerned topics related to my thesis with interest to promote and progress my research work.

I am indeed very thankful to my wife Mrs. Sadhana Sharma and daughters Miss Vaibhavi Sharma and Miss Shambhavi Sharma, who are a constant and immeasurable source of inspiration to me for their help and co-operation. This research could not have completed without their loving, care and motivation.

Finally, I reserve the most special thanks for my parents, especially my father whom I will appreciate as long as I live. They have done more for me than I can mention here, and without their unconditional love, help and support, this work would not have been possible. The caring, encouragement, support and prayers of my precious parents made it all possible.

My acknowledgements are also due to all those people who knowingly or unknowingly helped me in the successful completion of my work. I thank the almighty God for granting me the wisdom, health and strength to undertake this research and enabling me to its completion.
