ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The present work is the result of help, guidance and cooperation of many, besides my effort. Among them stands out the guidance, inspiration and expert advice of my research supervisor, Shri A. Sreekumar, Reader and Head, Department of Management Studies, Goa University. I am deeply indebted to him for his help in every stage of my research work despite his busy schedule.

I am grateful to my colleague, Dr. Nandakumar Mekoth, who has helped me a great deal by way of statistical analysis and valuable comments throughout the course of the study.

I must thank my colleagues, Dr. K. Mahender, for his help in multivariate statistical analysis, and Dr. P. N. Reddy and Mr. M. S. Dayanand for their help and support in doing the study.

During the course of the study, several bankers helped by providing information and suggestions. While I acknowledge the help of all of them, I must make a special mention of the help of Shri G. B. Warty, Chief Manager, Sales Planning, Zonal Office, SBI, Panaji. He readily agreed to help me whenever I approached him. I express my gratitude for his help and cooperation in doing the study.

At this juncture, I remember, with gratitude, the help and guidance I received from my teachers, Prin. (Retd.) G. V. Bhat and Prof. G.V. Joshi during my student days. I am thankful to Dr. I. V. Joshi and Shri G. G. Shanbhag for the inspiration and good wishes showered upon me. I must acknowledge the cooperation and encouragement of my mother, brother, parents-in-law and specially, my wife.

My thanks are due to Mr. Dilip Chary for typing and Mr. Augustine for data entry.

While it is not possible to mention the names of all those who have helped, I gratefully remember the help of every one in completing this work.

MARCH 1, 1996

SATISH GANAPATI HEGDE