CONTENTS

Introduction: The Victorian Age: A Patriarchal Mirror and a Female Reflection

Chapter 1: ‘The Chiepest Apprehension / Upon my thronging Mind’: The Woman Author’s Anxiety of Self, Subjectivity and Creativity

Chapter 2: ‘Thy worthiest love to a worthless counterfeit’: The Woman Poet’s ‘doubt and dread’ of Unconsummated Love

Chapter 3: ‘Judge tenderly of me’: The Woman Poet in Quest of Succour in Nature’s ‘tender majesty’

Chapter 4: ‘Why – do they shut Me out of Heaven?’: Female Ire and the Poetics of the Religious

Chapter 5: ‘The theme grows sadder – but my soul shall find / A language in these tears!’: Voicing a Female Endurance of Death

Conclusion: ‘We are sepulchred alive in this close world, / And want more room’: The Woman Writer and the Anxiety of Secluded Female Art

Select Bibliography