My thesis is dedicated to my grandpa Late Shri Raghunandan Singh Sodhi, who used to address me fondly as Professor Sandy (my nickname), every time I called on him; he used to count the number of days left for my submission but unfortunately could not survive to see this happen. His blessings have inspired me to make this happen. I thank him with all my affection, gratitude and motivation.

I have my deepest gratitude and respect for my guide Professor Seema Vinayak, who has not only been my mentor and guide, but always been there with her empathetic nature, treating me like her own child. Her continued guidance, affectionately showing the way despite my shortcomings, helped me complete this work which could not have been possible without her by my side. She had been the best teacher, and guide that I could ever think of having. Thank you Ma’am for being there.

I would like to thank the faculty of the Department of Psychology, Panjab University especially Professor Meena Sehgal, Chairperson for her support and encouragement. My special thanks to the entire staff of the Department of Psychology. I also thank Mahendru Sir, Computer Science Department, Dr. Suresh Sharma, and Dr. Pooja Bansal of the Statistics Department in the Panjab University for helping me decipher my data. The Traffic police departments of Chandigarh, Panjab and Haryana were highly supportive and helped me interact with the traffic offenders from time to time to get the questionnaires filled from them.

The contribution of my parents who were my major strength and walked with me, sharing every part of my tribulations, work and successes, tolerating my tantrums, and helping me with each and everything; thank you mum and dad for your loving care. My brother, Amanjeet whom I missed; who, though not being with me physically, continued to encourage me through calls and messages, peppered with his inimitable wit that kept me in high spirit.

I wish to thank my fiancé and my best friend Saurabh Chopra who has been there for me all the time, his incessant support, motivation and love kept me going through thick and thin, his caring family, my cousins Amrita, Puneet and Gundeep, all my relatives and friends especially Nitasha, Vrinda, Suman, Anupreet, Jotika for their unrelenting support and presence whenever I needed them. Thank you all.

Last but not the least, I thank the omnipresent Almighty, my "Waheguru Ji" for giving me strength equal to my task and making me an instrument of this study that may help create a better world, to whatever extent, for the humanity.
