Acknowledgements

I would like to start by thanking Dr. Rajib Chakraborty, Associate Professor, Department of Applied Optics & Photonics, University of Calcutta, for his prudential guidance, constant enthusiasm and intellectual support in designing, implementation and presentation of the present research work. He has been a great source of motivation and encouragement for my academic progress and without his immense help this research would have been impossible. His ideas gave me the first drift in this research work and it is still continuing.

I also want to express my gratitude to Prof. A. Ghosh and Prof. K. Bhattacharya for making me comfortable with the vast fields of optics and photonics. I am also grateful to Prof. L. N. Hazra, Prof. A. Basuray, Prof. A. K. Chakraborty, Prof. S. K. Sarkar and Dr. M. Roy for their valuable suggestions in learning critical aspects of the concerned fields. I would like to thank Dr. Sanatan Chattopadhyay for providing me with valuable suggestions and equipments for carrying out some experiments. I would also like to thank all the office and technical staff for taking care of all the official and technical part of my research life.

I have spent a wonderful period of my life with all my colleagues. They not only helped me academically but also provided an emotional cushion of love and support for my puzzled personal life and academic mind. For this, I specially thank, Srinjoy Maity, Rahul Shaw, Anindita Das, Soumya Gupta, Sounak Bhattacharya, Souvik Ghosh, Suchandra Saha and Sanjukta Sarkar. I would also like to extend my thanks to all the past and present graduate students of the department who imbibed me with enthusiasm and have made the working environment very nice and friendly.

I thank CRNN of University of Calcutta, DST – Govt. of India and UGC – Govt. of India for providing me the financial support for the entire Ph.D. research work.

Finally, I thank all of my family members and friends for their invaluable support. They shaped the way for the fulfillment of my choices by sacrificing their own, which made me what I am today. My dreams become true for them. Thank you all.