Research is a stimulating expedition where we work at the ever shifting boundaries of known and unknown. Like any other venture, this cannot be accomplished rewardingly unless we have continuous stimulations to guide and persuade us. As they say “a journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step”, I think time is ripe to walk down the memory lane and express my gratitude to all those people who have, in their own special way, helped me reach this destination.

At the outset, I express my deep gratitude to Padmashree Dr. G. C. Mishra for giving me this rare opportunity to work in this highly esteemed research institute with all the updated scientific facilities to enable a high quality research.

I express my cordial appreciation and gratitude to my guide, Dr. S. A. Bapat, for her warm encouragement, constant support, and thoughtful guidance. Besides honing my scientific aptitude, she has instilled perseverance in me which forms an integral element of scientific training. I am indebted to her for teaching research and shaping me into a good researcher. Not perfectly, but I have always tried to imbibe her virtues of meticulous planning and perfect organization. Besides being an admirable supervisor, she has been a proficient motivator throughout my stay in her laboratory. I will never forget the tremendous care, benevolence and affection she has bestowed on me. I feel extremely privileged to work under her supervision. I am thankful to her for providing an ambient atmosphere and excellent facilities to carry out the present research work. Her tremendous interest in my project enabled this piece of research work to approach to its present shape. Her balanced approach in training her students wherein she perfectly blends the right amount of stringency to “pull strings” along with giving us ample freedom to explore new horizons makes it an absolute delight to work under her supervision. I have always admired her discipline in maintaining the sessions of journal clubs and lab meetings very religiously. Those were the most fruitful sessions which enabled us to critically analyse and appreciate the facts and facets of science. Thank you ma’am, for being so patient with my queries, my mistakes and giving me an opportunity to work in your lab. I have absolutely enjoyed working under you tutelage.

I started my PhD journey with a naive stance and I was lucky enough to have the opportunity to learn a lot from my seniors Nawneet, Neeti and Avinash who stood by me in all times of need. I am extremely thankful to Avinash for teaching me basics of cell culture and helping me acclimatize to lab environment perfectly. He was instrumental in arranging all that I needed for my experiments. A special thanks to Nawneet for introducing me to basic molecular biology techniques. He was the one who constantly elevated my spirits in difficult times when things were not working. I also thank Neeti for extending all her help, support and care during her stay in the lab. Together, all four of us have strived and shared four to five long years and have created lots of wonderful memories to cherish all through our lives. Again thanks a lot Nawneet, Neeti and Avinash for all the good times and I wish you all success and happiness in life.

My colleagues deserve a very special recognition. I feel enormously happy to have Raj, Nimisha, Anand, Brijesh, Tejaswini, Rutika and Swapnil, who have made my research life easy with their support, care, concern and affection. They not only extended all possible help but also made the working atmosphere pleasant. Raj and his poise, Anand and his quite wits, Brijesh and his naughty deeds, Tejaswini and her soft gestures, Rutika and her cheerful smile, Rohini and her sanity altogether they made a happy cluster which kept my spirits high and my optimism alive.

I am especially appreciative to Raj for his support, suggestions and help during the course of my stay. Very special thanks are reserved for Anand and Brijesh for their wonderful company, and immense help. Their phrasal words “ho jayega” always did their magic to rejuvenate me. With Tejaswini, the most unsaid was well understood. She was Miss Dependable. I am extremely thankful to Rutika for being an understanding companion and giving me company during the sessions of my thesis writing and asking me off and on “kitna ho gaya” which drove me faster and ahead! Here Rohini deserves a special corner for her constant care and tremendous concern. Nimisha helped me with my experiments and to reach the fag-end of my study. During the final moments of winding up this squad of my colleagues taught me stay calm and manage things one by one. I would also like to thank Swapnil who joined the squad during my final days. Thanks a lot.

The financial support from CSIR is greatly acknowledged.

I am especially thankful to my lab colleagues Monika, Roli, Shweta, Sachin, Sangeeta, Sreekumar, Namrata, Mohan, Ashwini, Smriti, Vasudha, Kavita who have rendered their whole-hearted cooperation and support during the course of my stay in the lab. Monika, Roli and Shweta deserve very special thanks for their selfless consideration, support and constructive criticism that kept me moving all the time; further their enthusiasm made my day.

I thank Swapnil, Pratibha and Hemangini for their assistance in Flow cytometry. Swapnil helped me in doing majority of the sorting experiments and made my work to pace forward. I thank all the staff members from Animal House, Admin, Academic cell, Accounts, Stores & Purchase, Instrument & Maintenance, Washing, Library, Media & Repository, Computer section and Civil departments for providing basic infrastructure. I thank all the drivers, security personals and lab boys for their help and assistance.

My stay in NCCS hostel was an exhilarating experience in the company of Nanita, Vasundhara, Priyanka, Praveena, Pratima, Ronjita, Gayatri and Supinder. I was lucky enough to have them around me to share even the smallest happiness and biggest troubles. It was all smiles and fun to be with them. Nanita was a bundle of energy, fun to be with who taught me live and make the most of the present moment. Vasundhara has been a non-demanding and understanding companion. Priyanka was my soft target for leg pulling yet on the other hand; she was my venting pit who always gave me an unbiased opinion about anything we discussed. Ranjita, my “pseudo-roomie” was considerate; she is one of the calm individual I have met. Supinder and Gayatri were considerate, enthusiastic and helpful. Thank you girls!!

On a more personal observe, I am lucky to be associated with some good hearts and minds in form of friends who have believed in me and stood by me during difficult times. I take this opportunity to express gratitude to my friends from yester years Soniya, Meenal, Suruchi and Niti whose support and care have helped me stay sane and overcome setbacks in tough times. I am especially grateful to Meenal for being there with me through all ups and downs and for soothing me in my most difficult moments. She has proven to be one I can always depend on. Suruchi always boosted my morale, lent me a listening ear and a comforting shoulder in all times of need. I cherish her friendship and association, now and always. I value our bonding beyond measures.

I cannot write all the names but you all are very special and thank you so much...

I am highly obliged and indebted to my teacher and my motivation Dr. Avinash Upadhayay. I cannot find a shining word or a glowing phrase that can truly reciprocate his tremendous concern for his students. He has instilled in me “never say die” attitude for which I admire him most. He has always been a source of inspiration during the most trying times. I feel short of words to express how much I am indebted to him for teaching me various facets of science and also helping me whenever I looked up to him. Not perfectly but I have always tried to imbibe several of his virtues including his presentation and teaching skills. He had not just been a teacher but also an admirable comrade who enabled me to pull out of difficult situations undefeated. I thank God Almighty for blessing me with such a gifted and wonderful teacher whom I can respect as much as I respect my parents. Thank you so much Sir, for believing in me and letting me be “myself”. I hope I can live up to your expectations.

The history in my mind will always record the names of all my teachers who have taught me and had a role in making the person as I am today. Thank you so much.

Besides all the above, it is the blessings of my loving family and Almighty God with their unconditional love, care and support; I am at this position today.

I feel short of words to express my intimate gratitude to my family. My parents always believed in me and my dreams. Throughout my childhood and career, my parents have always encouraged me to follow my inquisitive mind in any direction this took me. They always showed me all possible paths and gave me freedom to think, analyse and decide my directions. They always gave me my space and understood my feelings. I adulate them for never complaining even when I made biggest mistakes, rather they supported me to stand up on my feet to face the toughest phases of my life. They have instilled in me the ability to face every challenge and come out undefeated. I promise to carry this positive attitude throughout my life and swear I will never let them down. Thanks a lot to my dear brothers, Ajay (Rinku) and Amit (Sonu) whose unconditional love and unstinting support has always been my confidence. They have been my reason to smile and stay cheerful. Rinku has been instrumental in enabling me achieve my goals. I do not have words to suffice my feelings for my husband, closest pal, confident, and inspiration Saravana. He is the axis without whom it is difficult for me to do anything. He has always stood beside me like a rock through all thick and thin, motivated me, thought me to believe in myself, tolerated all my bad tempers and still continues to believe in me. With him around, I never felt a need to worry about anything. I could never understand till date where he got that “sixth sense” to perceive and appear from nowhere whenever I was in a fix or I needed him most. His affection and bonding with me is beyond all riches of the world. May God bless him in all his endeavours! My parents, brothers and my husband Saravana are my inspiration, my strength, my confidence, they are everything to me. I am indebted to them for their unswerving trust in me that encouraged me, gave me values that helped me to stay on the right track and provided an unstinted support to fall back on in difficult moments of life. I feel blessed and thank Almighty for making me a part of such a wonderful family.

Above all, the sacredness of God Almighty showered blessings taught lessons and provided strength and everything to accomplish this goal. I pray and thank Almighty for blessing me with this life full of opportunities to explore and wonderful people to associate with. This thesis is a concerted and cumulative effort of years of perseverance and support by many people and I take this opportunity to dedicate it to the lotus feet of my GURUDEV - Sant Shri Asharamji Bapu and to my PARENTS.
