ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I take the opportunity to thank my supervisor Dr. Sakiya Khan, Professor, Department of Economics, Gauhati University, Guwahati, for her constant guidance, encouragement and support through the entire period of this research. I offer my sincere gratitude to her.

I would also like to express my gratefulness to all the faculty members of the Department of Economics, Gauhati University, without whose support and advice it would not have been possible for me to complete this work. I thank all the research scholars of the Department whose comments and inputs have greatly benefitted me.

I would like to express my gratitude to the following people who have variously helped me in my research: Professor Hiranya Kumar Nath, Department of Economics and International Business, Sam Houston State University, Texas; Professor Nityananda Sarkar, Indian Statistical Institute, Kolkata; Professor B. Kamaiah, School of Economics, University of Hyderabad, and Dr. Khanindra Chandra Das, Assistant Professor, Indian Institute of Management, Shillong. I also appreciate the invaluable help of Bhabesh Hazorika of IIT, Kharagpur and Hemanta Barman of IIT, Guwahati.

The following institutions helped me by providing me with various facilities, and my thanks go to them as well: V. V. Giri National Labour Institute, Noida; Omeo Kumar Das Institute of Social Change and Development, Guwahati, and the Indian Institute of Technology, Guwahati. I am also thankful to the University Grants Commission, India, for providing with the financial assistance during this research.

I would also like to express my sincere gratitude to all the boarders, past and present, of the V.Venkata Rao Research Scholars’ Hostel, Gauhati University, where I have conducted the greater part of this work, and to its entire staff for giving me a home away from home. I would also like to warmly thank my teacher Pranab Jyoti Das at the Department of Economics, Darrang College, Tezpur, for his endless encouragement. Last but not the least, I offer my sincere gratitude to my family members for their endless patience and continuous support and encouragement, and all my friends and well-wishers.
