ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It would be very difficult for me to attempt acknowledging my gratitude to people who have enabled me in this endeavor, looking for meaning and freedom of choice, which is what this research is all about.

I am grateful to Chief of Army Staff of Indian Army and his staff, especially in Military Training Directorate and Military Secretariat Branch of Armoured Corp in Army Headquarter, New Delhi for granting me sabbatical leave to pursue research; I am thankful to my regiment for sparing me from regiment duties for this duration.

I am privileged to have Dr. A. J. Wadkar, Reader in the Department of Psychology, University of Pune as my guide, who has been mentoring me since over eight years now. Dr. A. J. Wadkar has been instrumental in my striving towards intellectual and personal growth. I shall remain indebted to Dr. A. J. Wadkar forever.

I am thankful to Dr. P. H. Lodhi, Head of the Department of Psychology, University of Pune, Dr. Usha Ram, and the entire faculty and staff for their wholehearted support and assistance in facilitating my research. I found suggestions of Dr. P. H. Lodhi and Dr. B. R. Shejwal extremely useful while attempting multivariate analyses. I am also grateful to my colleagues from statistical department Ms. Gauri Khatu and Ms. Radhika Chipade who took time out to explain the finer nuances of statistical analyses. The timely help and motivation from my research colleagues in the psychology department deserves a special mention, Sunitha helped me in tackling the SPSS, Vaishali made statistical analyses less difficult to comprehend.

The onerous task of timely data collection for this research would not have been possible without the blessings and good will of the Commandants’ and senior military officers in various military establishments in Pune where the data has been collected. I am especially grateful to the administrative staff at National Defence Academy (NDA), College of Military Engineering (CME), Artificial Limb Centre (ALC), Queen Mary’s Technical Institute (QMTI) for disabled soldiers, and the Infantry brigade for slotting time in their schedule for data collection. I am personally thankful to each one of the respondents who consented to willingly complete time consuming tests with a lot of zeal and enthusiasm; their patience was a learning for me.

Any research requires extensive visits to libraries and I would like to place on record the immense help I got from the entire library staff in Jaykar library in University of Pune and National Institute of Mental Health and Neurological Sciences (NIMHANS), Bangalore.

I would especially like to thank Mr. Sanil Pawar for the tremendous resilience shown in diligently helping me with data entry and computer work.

Closer home, I owe a lot to my parents, relatives, and friends. The tremendous social support I have received from them has sustained me during my research.

I would like to also thank my colleagues for their unequivocal support and assistance which was always forthcoming, Col. R. P. Pande, Lt. Col. G. S. Reddy, Lt. Col. Nausherwan Irani, Tushar, Sharmila, Taran, Rajkumar, to name a few.

My son Suryang and wife Neelima deserve special mention as they relentlessly endeared my unsocial behavior and unpredictable circadian rhythm so that I could battle the research on a war footing with complete abandon.
