ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am highly indebted to the Indian School of International Studies for the award of a fellowship during the period 1959-62 which enabled me to undertake this study. I acknowledge with deep gratitude to Dr. A.K. Dasgupta, presently Director of the A.N. Sinha Institute of Social Sciences, Patna and Dr. Subimal Mookerjee, presently on the staff of the International Monetary Fund, for the pains they took in supervising this work and making useful suggestions. I am happy to acknowledge my debt and express gratitude to Dr. A. Appadorai, presently Member of the Union Public Service Commission, and Dr. M.S. Rajan, Director of the School, who were a constant source of guidance, encouragement and inspiration.
