ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am grateful to my supervisor, Professor A.N. Hallagounden for stimulating my ideas on the subject, constant interest, and guidance at successive stages of my work. But for his long sittings with me amongst his numerous responsibilities at the Madras University, Madras, where he is currently holding the Chair in the Department of Economics, this work might not have completed within the stipulated time. I am deeply indebted to Professor Tapas Rajumdar for his interest in my work and the encouragement he gave me from time to time to get several research articles published on the basis of the present work.

I thank the University Grants Commission and the Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi for awarding their scholarships for enabling me to undertake this research work.

It is my pleasant duty to thank the Chief Executive Officer, Dr. S.C. Chowdhury for allowing me access to the National Sample Survey schedules at the Regional Office at Chandigarh and the Assistant Director in charge of that office for offering me all possible help in my work. Thanks are due to the Registrar General, India, for making available the unpublished data of the 1971 census and for generating special tables on education and occupation relating to the scheduled castes population of the Punjab. I express my gratitude to the officers of the Directorate of Education, Punjab Government, Chandigarh to make available unpublished data regarding enrolment at various levels for different years.
I sincerely thank the principals of various colleges and heads of educational institutions in Chandigarh for their cooperation in enabling me to collect information about the scheduled castes students in their institutions. I owe my gratitude to all my respondents who spared their valuable time for this work.

I am grateful to the Director, Delhi University Computer Centre for making available computer facilities and to Shri S.K. Luthra for undertaking the programming part. My brother, Dr. Devendra B. Gupta, went through my draft and made very valuable suggestions, I am grateful to him.
