ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I acknowledge with deepest gratitude my debt to Dr N.G. Venkataramani without whose advice, encouragement and intellectual stimulation this thesis would not have been possible. I am also grateful to Dr Ashok Guha and Dr Satish Kumar and other members of the faculty of the School of International Studies for re-introducing me to the classroom.

My thanks are also due to the librarians and staff of several libraries in New Delhi and the United States where I conducted my research. Their help in locating material and sources was invaluable. The libraries in New Delhi are: The Indian Council of World Affairs, Nehru Memorial, Central Secretariat, Ministry of External Affairs, Jawaharlal Nehru University and the American Library. In the United States I worked at the Library of the Congress, Sterling Memorial Library, Yale University, Library of the Department of Agriculture, Harry S. Truman Library, Dwight D. Eisenhower Library, John F. Kennedy Library, Lyndon B. Johnson Library and the Indian Embassy Library, Washington D.C.

I am also grateful to the host of officials and policy advisors of the United States and Indian governments for their cooperation in granting interviews and recounting events as they viewed them.

I acknowledge the help given by the staff of the Press Information Bureau, New Delhi and the assistance provided by the Economics Research Service, United States Department of Agriculture, US Congressional committees and especially the US State Department Agency for International Development.

I would also like to thank my family for being constantly enthusiastic about this venture, especially my son Rahul, whose enthusiasm took the form of typing assistance in the initial stages of my thesis.
