ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Research is never a product of the thought process of researcher alone. Even the way of thinking in itself is a product of a process of the past, an accumulation of ideas from different sources. In my case the way I selected the research topic is the contribution of my study of botany and anthropology and participation in NGO activities as well. Needless to say it is difficult to list the contribution of each and one who enriched me while writing this dissertation, though I wish I could do it in this formal presentation of acknowledgement. However, I will fail in my moral duty if I do not make mention of those who are directly associated with my present research assignment.

At the outset I express my deep sense of gratitude to my supervisor Dr. M.C. Behera, Associate professor, Arunachal Institute of Tribal Studies, RGU; whose illuminating and painstaking guidance has always been readily available to me right from the formulation of the proposal to the completion of the present study. His exceptional knowledge and skills have provided me with number of opportunities to learn and grow. I will never be able to express my gratefulness to him for sharing his knowledge, understanding, research skills and intellectual inputs. No one could have been more devoted in guiding my study in the right direction, and across ‘the shadow between conception and creation’.

In particular, I would like to thank Prof. Tamo Mibang, Director, AITS, RGU, whose fatherly guidance and encouragement has always helped me to remain optimistic in all stages of my study. I grateful to my teachers Dr. Sarit Chaudhury, Associate Professor, AITS and Dr. Sucheta Sen Chaudhury, Asst. Professor for their constant inspirations and encouragement. I am also thankful to my friends and colleagues Ms. Lisa Lomdak and Dr. H. Vokendra Singh for their support.

It is my sincere duty to extend my thanks to my former teacher Prof. P.T. Abraham, who has guided me and encouraged to take up Indigenous Knowledge System as a topic of research for my M.A. (Anthropology), Dissertation in 2003.

Many faculty members in the university have encouraged me in different ways. Mention may be made of Prof. P.K. Panigrahi, Prof. Pura Tado & Dr. Nani Bath, from Department of Political Science; Prof. B. Tripathy, Dr. Sarah Hillaly & Dr. Tana Showren from Department of History; Prof. K.C. Kapoor & Prof. J.C. Soni from Department of Education; Prof. A. Mitra, Prof. N.C. Roy, & Prof. S.K. Nayak from Department of Economics; Prof. R. Tamuli, Department of Management; Dr. R.C. Parida, Dr. Tasi Kaye & Dr. Otem Moyong from Department of Commerce; Prof. N. Nagaraju from Department of English and Dr. Tomo Riba from Department of Geography. Rajiv Gandhi University have not only been my well wishers but have over the period also influenced my academic understanding directly or subtly.

The present work would have remained an unfinished task without the technical generosity of Prof. A.K. Das, Head, Department of Botany and Mr. Joram Muthu, Asst. Professor, Dera Natung Government College, Itanagar in identifying various plants; Dr. Kenjum Bagra in identifying various species of fish; Mr. Moji Riba for all the encouragement and construction of photo log and audio log; Mr. Igam Basar for identification of the pest; and Dr. Bomchak Riba, Cartographer, Department of Geography Rajiv Gandhi University, who had remained a source of inspiration and had greatly helped with the maps. So I am grateful to all of them. I acknowledge College of Horticulture & Forestry, Central Agricultural University, Pasighat, for the PIC format that helped me constructing the PIC format for the present study.

My special sense of gratitude is due to all those social scientists whose guidance has contributed to my understanding for dealing with the theme of this study. Mention may be made of Prof. B.K. Roy Burman, Delhi, Prof. K.K. Misra, Director IGRMS, Bhopal, Prof. P.S. Rmakrishnan, JNU, Delhi and Prof. J. Dash, Department of Anthropology, Utkal University, Odhisa who discussed the theme at length and provided necessary insights during the initial phase of my research; Shri. G.N. Sinha, Director, SFRI, Itanagar, who always helped me in the understanding of forest and land laws and whose reading materials I have extensively used; and Prof. AK Danda, Prof. Vijoy Sahay, Prof. OP Monga, Prof. Vinay Srivastava who have been kind enough in providing conceptual clarity during time of doubts.

I am greatly indebted to the people of Liru, Ringi, Tapo, Piri, Siru, Darka, Tadin, Kabu, Paya, Belo (Yinyo), Siru Tali, Lile Boje, Ratak Gamlin, Chekor Lombi and Yiga for their unceasing cooperation and hospitality during fieldwork. I would be failing in my duty if I do not mention the timely help and cooperation of Mr. Yomnga Esse, Mr. Dakli Lombi, Mr. Somach Bogo, all students of AITS; my friend Tapak Kato and Tumnege Lollen; my uncle
Dakto Lollen; bai, Kenrik Basar in carrying out the fieldstudy. I am indebted to Dr. Tai Nyori, Shri. Tony Koyu, Dr. Golek Yomcha, Dr. Tejum Padu, Shri. P. Kena, Shri. Taro Kena, and Tama Mindo (shaman), all from Itanagar, for information on various aspects of Galo culture.

I am specially thankful to my friends Jombi Bagra, Lijum Nochi, Tongam Rina, Tabang Mibang, Nabam Nakha Hina, Amenla Alinger, Chandrashiv, Philip, Anil Mili, Nani Tamang Jose, Yankee Modi, Otem Pertin, Amem Tayeng, Karma Tsering, Mic Direhi, Boa Reena, Tajen Dabi, Suwana Manlong, Phezon Wangsa, Oken and Take Laye who at various stages have extended required help and encouragement. Special mention may be made of dear friend Devi who had taken the pains of going through the drafts and Dr. Eswarrapa Kasi, University of Hyderabad who had been the source of my access to various publications.

I would also like to thank all the officials of Directorate of Agriculture, Naharlagun, Directorate of Horticulture, Itanagar, Department of Environment and Forests, Itanagar, Directorate of Fisheries, Itanagar, Forest Research Institute, Itanagar, Rural Development Department, Itanagar, District Agriculture Office, Aalo, District Horticulture Office, Aalo, Panchayat Office, Aalo, District Fisheries Development Office, Aalo, District Forests Office, Aalo, DRDA, Aalo, and Block Development Office (Aalo East and West) for their cooperation. Special thanks goes to Dr. P. Nath, Asst. Director, Directorate of Fisheries, Itanagar; Shri. P.K. Purkayastha, Deputy Director, Directorate of Agriculture, Naharlagun, Shri. Tado Ado, Deputy Director, Rural Development Department and Shri. T. Lomdak, Director (retired), Department of Horticulture, Itanagar for extending necessary help.

During the course of my study I had visited many libraries within and outside the state. I am indebted to librarian and other officials of Omeo Kumar Das Institute of Social Change and Development, Guwahati; University of Hyderabad, Hyderabad; Gauhati University, Guwahati; JNU, New Delhi; Indian Institute of Forest Management, Bhopal; Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Manav Shangralaya, Bhopal; American Consulate, Delhi; Council of Analytical Tribal Studies, Koraput (Orissa); Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribes Research and Training Institute, Bhubaneswar; Department of Anthropology, Uttkal University, Bhubaneswar; Rajiv Gandhi University, Itanagar; State Forest Research Institute, Itanagar; GB Pant Institute of Himalayan Environment & Development, Northeast Unit, Itanagar; Department of Economics and Statistics, Itanagar were visited. Further, Ratan Tata Library, Delhi; Central Science Library, Delhi University, Delhi; State Library, Itanagar; Reference Library, Itanagar; and District Library, Aalo for providing me with all the necessary reference materials. I am also thankful to the officials of State Archives of Arunachal Pradesh, Itanagar and State Archives of Assam, Guwahati for providing necessary access to archival records.

I am grateful to Rajiv Gandhi University for all the support and assistance. I am thankful to Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR) for financial assistance under the Doctoral Fellowship Programme.

The present work could never have been possible without the help and support of my family members. I am thankful to my father-in-law, Shri Dagjom Loyi, and mother-in-law, Smti. Bade Loyi, for encouraging me in all possible way. My parent, Dr. Tajum Basar and Smti. Dakter Basar always remains my source of inspiration for all academic pursuit. I am thankful to them for all the support and care they have taken towards my education. Further I wholeheartedly thank all my family members for the encouragement and never ending support during the course of my study. Last but not the least I am thankful to my husband Jommi Loyi, who has wholeheartedly supported me in all my endeavours.

Rajiv Gandhi University
Dated 30th March 2011

(Jumyir Basar)