Acknowledgements

I hereby acknowledge the inspiration, guidance and moral support from the following people, great artists and scholars in the field of music. They have inspired my forays into the realm of Layam and its impact on all the creative and composite aspects of Karnatic Music:

At the outset I would like to thank the Bharathidasan University for enrolling me as its student and permitting me to do my thesis under their aegis.

I deeply thank Dr. Uma Maheswari for her valuable guidance in collating this thesis. She has always made herself accessible despite her busy schedule and her input has been most valuable.

I am also grateful to Dr. Srividya, Principal In Charge, the Govt. music college Thiruvaaiyyaru, for enrolling me as a research scholar.

The greatest debt is to my Guru, Padma Bhushan Chembai Vaidyanatha Bhagavathar, the doyen of Karnatik music. He was the all-time musical legend of Kutcheri Sampradayam. He was the undisputed master of layathwam in all its glory. He had mastered the art of performance right from intricate varnams to monumental Kritis, from four kalai pallavis (presented by him for the first time in the Kutcheri format and gramophone albums) to romantic padams and javalis.

The various maestros like the inimitable Dr. Dwaram Venkataswamy Naidu, Madurai Mani Iyer, M.D. Ramanathan, Flute Mahalingam, Chittor Subramania Pillai, Veena Balachander, Madurai Somasundaram Pillai. They all had their own special ambiances and styles (banis).

The all-time great Mrdangam legends Palakkad Mani Iyer and his contemporary Palani Subramiam Pillai, the unique left handed Mrdangam maestro. They codified and established new dimensions in applied Layathwam through their unique and positive styles. Their accompaniment lifted music concerts to divine levels. I knew them very well all through my life and their influence on my psyche is immense. I acknowledge their vidwat, grace and scholarship.
I lived my younger years listening to all kinds of music, yet I was especially drawn to the Nadaswaram music of the legendary Rajarathnam Pillai, Thavil Meenakshi Sundaram pillai, Muthu Veera pillai and Raghava Pillai. I acknowledge their immense contributions in Layathwam, especially the perceptive karvais (silences in between phrases of music and rhythm).

The monumental musicological works, especially from the period of Bharatha and Dattila (2nd century BC) to the contemporary scholars of today go a long way to enriching and inspiring any ardent and serious student of Karnatic music. I bow to them in utmost humility.

A special mention of blessings to my disciple Salivahan Siva from London, who has with his perception and intelligence helped me with the coordination and placement of the different materials, in order to conform to the regulations.

I acknowledge the priceless help of my foster daughter and disciple Devie Neithiyar, who has worked relentlessly to realize my efforts in collating work materials, resourcing etc.

My senior disciples Ghatom V.Suresh, Violin S.Varadarajan, my son G.Ramanathan and U.Padmanaban who gave their best to help produce this unique audio-visual presentation – a cameo on layathwam.

I also acknowledge the inspirational support of Mrs.TVG (Radha Gopalakrishnan), who has helped keep my energies focussed on completing this (hopefully) valuable contribution to posterity.
