ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Acknowledgements often seem inadequate expressions of gratitude for the assistance tendered by people. To all those whose names appear below, I would like to say that the sentiments expressed may be brief, but they are heartfelt nevertheless.

I would like to acknowledge a deep debt of gratitude to Prof. T.K. Oommen for his unstinting support, assistance and kindness. Prof. Oommen supervised this thesis through an increasingly hectic personal schedule. I can never forget the promptness with which he would nevertheless peruse my work and the gentleness with which he would point out inconsistencies in any argument. Without his encouragement, it would have been difficult to finish this thesis.

I would also like to express my gratitude to late Dr. Mathew Kurien, whose help during the early days of fieldwork was invaluable to me.

I am also grateful to the librarian and staff of the Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, New Delhi; the United Theological College, Bangalore; the Mar Thoma Seminary, the Vadavathur Seminary, the Kottayam Public Library, Kottayam; the Trivandrum Public Library and the State Archives, Trivandrum.
This study was made possible because of the kindness shown to me by all the Syrian Christian families whom I met. To name them individually would be difficult. My thanks go to them all, for sharing their time and knowledge, and for showing me so much warmth and hospitality.

Ravi and Geetha, by giving me a home in Kottayam, made my stay and fieldwork so much more pleasurable that it may otherwise have been. For this, I will always think of them with gratitude.

I would like to thank Shri Om Parkash for typing this thesis.

My parents have seen me through the ups and downs of the process of completing this thesis. Any expression of my gratitude would be woefully inadequate. I am, therefore, simply not presuming to thank them. In Delhi, Uncle not only gave me a home, but constantly encouraged me to complete my work. Family and friends have been my greatest support and refuge. I thank them all. To Raghu, who always prodded me on, and to Gayatri and Siddharth who bore my absences from home with such equanimity, I simply say, thank you.
