ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I take this opportunity to express my indebtedness and sincere gratitude to my supervisor Prof. Nani Gopal Mahanta, head of the department, Political Science, Gauhati University, who despite his busy academic schedule was always there to help me, introduce various new ideas related to my work. He has constantly enlightened me through his thought provoking suggestions. His guidance, inspiration and constant support with patience despite my faults help me a lot in completing my thesis. I offer my humble submission and immense respect to my guide for whom only it is become possible for me to accomplish such a herculean task.

I express my sincere indebtedness to my teachers Prof. Sandhya Goswami, Prof Monirul Hussain, Prof Alaka Sarmah, Prof. Akhil Ranjan Dutta, Dr. Dhruba Pratim Sarmah, Dr. Subhrajeeet Konwar, Dr. Jayanta Krishna Sarmah, Dr. Rubul Patgiri, Dr. Joana Mehjabin, Barasa Deka and Bikash Tripathi for their support and inspiration.

The preparation of this thesis owes several debts of gratitude to Prof Dipak Kumar Sarma, Vice Chancellor, Kumar Bhaskar Varma Sanskrit and Ancient Studies University not only for his inspiration but also for his dedication to the academic development of the region.

My parents were always the source of inspiration for me. My father’s unending enthusiastic and brilliant peace of ambitious mind always inspired me to work hard. I am also thankful to my brother and sisters who supported me a lot.

I would like to thank Jahnabi Devi, Assistant Professor, Department of Political Science, K K Handiqui State Open University for her consistent support and encouragement throughout my hard times. Her critical thought always provided me a lot of help in formulating theoretical ideas.

I extend my thanks to the librarian and other staff of K K Handiqui Library of Gauhati University for helping me with valuable articles published in national and regional newspapers and magazines and also the most valuable JSTOR link. I also extend my overwhelmed thanks to library staff of OKDISCD, ICHR, NEN and NEHU.

My sincere gratitude is also to different social activists, police personnel who provided me important insight about the reality of BTAD. I also thank Prabin Bodo, BPF, Naba Sarania, MP, Jamser Ali, Nyaidabi Samiti, Samsul Haque, Gosaigaon College, Moon Kumar Goswami, MASS for their kind help during field visit.

I also extend my gratitude to my teacher Narayan Konwar, IAS who provided me the basic idea to conduct my research in this topic.

I deeply appreciate the help and encouragement I received from Dr. Chuchengfa Gogoi, Dr. Rajib Acharya, Pankaj Bora, Dr. Pranabjyoti Deka and Himangshu Haloi.

Pankaj Kumar Sarmah
Research Scholar,
Deptt of Political Science
Gauhati University