It is difficult and conscientiously unnerving to terminate the thesis at this point because there are so many aspects of this topic that need enquiry in greater details. It is very hard to resist the temptation of looking into the varied vistas of "Women Entrepreneurship" emerging with each passing day. For the fear of making this work look staggeringly voluminous, we have to terminate it precisely at this point.