ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I wish to thank Prof. Alok Bhattacharyya for the many discussions, critical suggestions and encouragement he has generously given me during course of my Ph.D. I would like to express my profound gratitude to Dr. Sudha Bhattacharyya for her excellent guidance, critical analysis and incisive suggestions. She has always been a source of support and inspiration.

I would like to thank the present Dean, Prof. R. K. Saxena of the School of Life Sciences, and the former Deans for all their help.

I thank the staff of the CEEF of SLS and SES for providing instrumentation facility. I am most grateful to Mr. M. N. Saini for his excellent photographic work. I also thank Kuldeep and Govind for technical assistance and Sajanji, Jeewanji and Manoj ji for their lab assistance.

It was an enriching experience and a pleasure to have worked with my previous lab colleagues, Nagendra, Monica, Suman da, Indrani di, Anindya da, Rachna and Ranjana who always managed to maintain the right balance of professionalism and friendly support within the lab. It would be a major oversight on my part to not make a (very!) special mention of Indrani di and Suman da in particular, who have helped me extensively even after leaving the lab and remain a source of guidance at critical junctures.

The contribution of a lively, supportive and cooperative lab atmosphere is invaluable as any science student can vouch for and for that I am much thankful to my lab-mates, Dr. Jaishree Paul, Satish, Paramita, Nivedita, Divya, Prabhat, Abhijeet, Alka, Shruti, Rekha and Sunil. Satish, Chaky, Niwu and I have had many fun times apart from commiserating with each other at our collective and individual woes, for the warmth and closeness I thank them.

I am grateful to Sonika for being extremely patient and helping me with the GC-skewness data. Thanks also to Mithu, Anirudha, Jha ji, Archana, Meenakshi, Ellora di, Anup, Jaideep, Monideepa, Shamik, Sagar, Dayanand, Indrani di and all other friends in SLS and SES for being supportive and extending help whenever necessary.

Some of my dear friends have given me the warm and cheerful feeling of a 'home away from home', and this is especially true of Hema and Ashish, in whose home and company I have spent many an enjoyable hour, and Maneesh and Karan who made much of an effort to support and entertain me.

For the warmth and affection of the Baruahs during last six years, I will always be grateful.

To Yash I am much indebted for her advice, support and unstinting help. My dear friends Aditi, Milasree, Bidisha, Shampa and Rituparna have always been supportive and I am thankful to them for all the fun times we shared, whether in person or Yahoo-ing!

I could not possibly express my appreciation and thanks to Suki for the lifetime of friendship we have shared and for all the times when she has encouraged me and made me feel like success would ultimately be mine - thanks also to Biplab, who is now no less of a friend.

For the company and light-hearted times, I thank Neetu, Mansendra, Narmada, Shiju, Ajish, Kanupriya, Shalu, Anju and Sonali for making the hostel a fun place.
About Preethi, I really don't know what to write. We have spent these last five years together in JNU more as part of a family than as friends. She has given me much love, support and strength through these years and I will doubtless miss the innumerable happy hours we spent with each other.

I could not but be grateful to my loving Mejo mama and mami who have encouraged and supported me throughout. A big thanks to my aunts, uncles and all my family members for their affection and encouragement.

While I miss my father greatly at every juncture, I continue to take courage and guidance from everything he has taught me. He is never far from my thoughts and I am grateful to have learnt the important lessons in life from him.

Nothing I say would be sufficient to describe the love and support I have received from my dearest didibhat and chhordidi. They have been more of mother-figures than sisters to me and I consider myself most blessed to have such wonderful siblings. Prasunda and Milanda have each been a source of loving support and I am thankful to them for all their efforts and encouragement. My beautiful, zestful, darling 'kids', Garia, Soham, Guddi and Biddu are my greatest source of the purest affection and good cheer.

To my exceptionally wonderful mother, I owe a lifetime of gratitude. She has been a pillar of support for me, contributing in a million small and big ways and her fortitude gives me all the courage I need. Her advice and support have been a major factor in helping me (the archetypical homebody!) to survive away from home and overcome the vagaries of life in research.

Finally I thank the Almighty for all good things in life.
